Dear Sir/Madame,

In general, I applaud the scope, findings and recommendations of the Aviation Safety Regulation Review 2014. I would like it noted, that I agree with AMROBA's submission ("ASRR Report Post Responses.pdf") in almost all respects and as such, hope that its submission will further refine direction for legislative reform, and the good governance of CASA, ATSB and Airservices Australia into the future.

I believe these changes are a matter of absolute urgency. Any delay, brings with it the possibility of a change of Government and a risk that the reform process may be stalled or impeded. The mandate for change is extremely evident and urgent, from the content of the submissions on the Aviation Safety Regulation Review website. 'Governments will come and go, but we (CASA) will still be here', has been heard by many in the aviation industry in the past and this attitude within the Regulator must change.

All sectors of the Australian Aviation industry deserve certainty and consistency through a regulatory environment supportive and appropriate to Australia's needs. Mutual trust, respect and communication between the Regulator and Industry is vital for aviation safety and viability. For the flying public's sake as much as the Industry, please make this reform process unstoppable.

Sincerely,

Doug Sprigg.
