

I support the recommendations and the initiatives of the review panel in relation to the ASIC card as follows:

"The Australian Government amends regulations so that background checks and the requirement to hold an Aviation Security Identification Card are only required for unescorted access to Security Restricted Areas, not for general airside access. This approach would align with international practice."

Many thanks to all in the review panel for your efforts in your findings, I have read all the material and from my considered opinion it is immediately obvious that the reviews findings have been well researched with what can only be expressed as a true representation of not only the submitted material but additional research by yourselves.

Kind regards,
Owen Bray
