AEROCARE RESPONSE TO MEDIA ALLEGATIONS

Aerocare is conducting a full review of the matters raised by the ABC 7.30 and Sydney Morning Herald overnight. Aerocare was not provided with any opportunity to comment on those allegations prior to publication.

Work Place Conditions

The media coverage has shown improvised sleeping arrangements said to be within the baggage handling area at Sydney Airport.

Aerocare provides a comfortable, air conditioned, catered lounge for the use of its staff. (photos included of Sydney Airport employee rest area for Aerocare). Aerocare is not aware of any of its employees sleeping between shifts in the manner depicted and does not permit its employees to do so.

Most of the personnel shown in the images are not Aerocare employees. The baggage handling area is accessed and used by employees from the many companies that service the airport and is patrolled by Australian Border Force and Airport Security.

Aerocare CEO, Glenn Rutherford said, “Aerocare does not and will not permit the “camping out” that has been shown. Our staff at Sydney Airport are provided with a comfortable, catered air conditioned and heated lounge.”

“Baggage areas are carefully monitored and recorded by airport and Australian Border Force personnel. We have contacted both parties to confirm whether they have any record of such activity.”

ABC 7.30 Report said that their sources were Aerocare employees who were risking their jobs to speak out publically. The ABC 7.30 story prominently featured an interview with a George Orsaris who was described as an Aerocare employee and spoke about fearing that he would lose his job. In fact Mr Orsaris left Aerocare nine month ago, partway through training. He was a trainee and employee over a two month period ending June 2016 during which time he undertook only 28 shifts that each averaged approximately 7 hours in duration with regular rest breaks and with no split shifts. His employment was exclusively in the catering truck segment of the business, which had no overlap with or access to the baggage claim areas that were the subject of his complaints. He left the company of his own volition and is now employed by a competitor.

Split Shifts

The opportunity to work two shifts in a day is offered to employees where the company does not have the contract coverage to provide a longer continuous shift. This was included in the last EBA that was approved by 97% of our workforce. Such shifts are entirely at the employees’ option.
Specific Incidents Raised by ABC 7.30 Report

Aerocare handles over 170,000 flight turns each year in complex airport environments.

The two incidents covered by the 7.30 Report were inaccurately represented:

- The cargo door incident was fully investigated by the airline, by Aerocare and by the safety regulator ATSB who confirmed the incident was "not a safety risk";
- The disabled lift had been knocked on its side and later reinstated after hitting an aerobridge to which it caused no material damage.

There is no basis for the suggestion that either incident was fatigue related.

Our data and customer feedback indicates that such events occur less frequently at Aerocare than for any of its peers.

Aerocare policies and culture enshrine and promote employee safety reporting in an open way that has been commended by customers as "best in class".

Our Approach to Safety

Aerocare’s approach to safety is through continual improvement and we have direct evidence as reported above that our performance is top-tier if not best-in-class with ongoing improvements in key performance metrics. Additional information on this topic can be found at our website (http://aerocare.com.au/category/news/) and in our corporate brochure (http://aerocare.com.au/wp-content/uploads/2016/03/Aerocare-Corporate-brochure-email.pdf) but we copy below a summary of material safety-related news over the last twelve months as evidence of our ongoing commitments and investments in this most crucial area of our business:

Other Summary Points of Fact:

- In 22 years and despite handling over a million flights, Aerocare has never been penalised for a safety related issue
- In 2016 Aerocare was subjected to over 180 safety and security-related audits – all passed
- Aerocare’s lost-time injury frequency rate (LTIFR) well below industry average
- The only Australian-owned handler registered to the top global standard - IATA Safety Audit for Ground Operations (ISAGO)
- Approach to safety acknowledged by industry with numerous awards and commendations
- Aerocare has and always will be fully compliant with all laws and regulations and, specifically as relates to employment conditions has had its industrial agreements repeatedly reviewed in detail and approved by the Fair Work Commission, which was unequivocal at the latest renewal in confirming that "each Award covered employee and each prospective Award covered employee would be better off overall if the [Aerocare] agreement applied than if the Award applied"
- Aerocare again committed to delivering significant wage increases under its new Enterprise Bargaining Agreement

KEY ISSUES/QUESTION

- Allegations made by Aerocare employees on the Monday 20 March ABC 7.30 Report program that current terms and conditions of employment are impacting on aviation safety at Australian airports.

GOVERNMENT POSITION

- The Australian Government takes aviation safety very seriously, we are proud of our excellent safety record and we will not compromise it.
- I am aware of concerns raised in relation to operations by Aerocare, an Australian ground handling company working for many of the major airlines at our major airports.
- I am informed that both Aerocare and the Fair Work Ombudsman are investigating the matters raised in media reports and considering whether further action is needed.
- In relation to aviation safety, airline operations, including the provision of ground handling services, are subject to regular auditing by the Civil Aviation Safety Authority (CASA), the aviation safety regulator.
- I have been advised that neither of the two reported safety-related incidents in the program, indicated any systemic safety issues.
- I would encourage anyone who has safety concerns at our airports to use the appropriate reporting mechanisms established with the Australian Transport Safety Bureau.
- Any worker concerned that terms of their enterprise agreement are not being followed is encouraged to raise their concerns with the Fair Work Ombudsman, which can investigate the matter.
- It is irresponsible for anyone to raise safety concerns through media outlets without going through due process, it is also concerning that this is occurring during EBA negotiations.
- These include the ability to provide confidential reports to our aviation safety investigator, the Australian Transport Safety Bureau (ATSB).
- I would encourage anyone who has safety concerns at our airports to use these reporting mechanisms.

[IF RAISED] OCCUPATIONAL HEALTH AND SAFETY AND INDUSTRIAL MATTERS

- The Occupational Health and Safety issues raised in the program are matters for the respective state OH&S oversight agencies.
- Negotiations between the company and its employees over a new collective wages agreement are a matter for the parties concerned.

BACKGROUND

On 20 March 2017, the ABC 7.30 television program ran a story based on interviews with several Aerocare workers and the Transport Workers Union which raised safety concerns caused by the terms and conditions of employment used by Aerocare.

The ABC program heavily focussed on the terms and conditions of Aerocare workers and linked this with safety concerns caused by fatigue given some part-time staff were working several shifts and hence having to sleep at the airport in between shifts in makeshift, poor conditions.

Aerocare, an Australian-owned company, provides contracted ground handling services at around 35 of Australia and New Zealand’s major airports for several Air Operator’s Certificate (AOC) holders including Qantas, Jetstar, Virgin, Tiger and Singapore Airlines. The company has responded to the program noting that it turns around over 170,000 flights per year and has an IATA accredited safety rating for ground services.

Aviation Safety Regulation

Part of the regulatory compliance obligations of the AOC holder require the holder to have comprehensive operating procedures in place with which the ground services organisation must comply. The airlines are also required to have in place an effective audit regime, as part of their safety management systems, to ensure the operations of the ground services organisation are in compliance with the airline’s stipulated procedures.

CASA oversees the airlines that contract Aerocare to perform services in accordance with the airlines’ operating procedures. CASA routinely conducts surveillance of the airline operations, including those services that Aerocare performs for the airline.

In particular, CASA will determine, through regular surveillance activity, the maturity of the airline to appropriately oversight and manage third-party contractors such as Aerocare. Any CASA audit findings are issued to the airline and if these relate to the services provided by the ground service organisation, the airline is required to ensure appropriate remedial action is taken by the third party. CASA in turn assesses the efficacy of the remedial action.

Aviation Safety Incidents

The program also raised two alleged safety incidents involving Aerocare – a cargo door that was not properly shut before pushback at Brisbane Airport on 28 November 2014 and the top of a disabled persons lift being towed hitting an aerobridge in 2015.

On 1 December 2014, the ATSB was notified of an event involving a Tigerair A320 aircraft during push back—as opposed to take-off as reported by 7.30—while a cargo door was open at Brisbane airport.

Before push back, both pilots viewed the door page as closed and ground crew confirmed ground checks were completed.

The aircraft pushed back and the flight crew were then made aware via an automatic alert that the door was not fully closed.

At the completion of the push back, the pilots queried the door with the ground crew and the cargo door was secured.

The flight crew are not made aware of the extent to which the door isn’t shut, just that it’s not closed and locked and therefore not in a safe condition for take-off.

The airline notified the ATSB of this event on 1 December 2014, which is within the timeframe required for reporting this type of event.

Based on the notification, the ATSB assessed that the system worked as designed to detect the anomaly and the event was not a transport safety matter. The ATSB, therefore, did not investigate the event.

In relation to the 2015 disabled persons lift incident, Aerocare has stated this was investigated by the company and the airline incident auditors.

The incident involved a lift being towed between airport gates in preparation for a later flight and, in contravention of operating procedures, the tow driver took a “short-cut” and the top of the lift hit the aerobridge. The incident was reported to CASA and the airport.

The incident auditors did not find any systemic evidence of deficient procedures or that training or fatigue were contributing factors. The incident led to the employee involved being provided with coaching to improve future performance.

Response from Aerocare

Aerocare have released a media statement stating that comfortable rest facilities are available for their staff, including at Sydney Airport. Most of the employees shown in the ABC were not actually Aerocare workers and that Aerocare does not permit the ‘camping out’ of employees as shown on the video.

The person interviewed for the story was only employed for a short period and left the company 9 months ago in June 2016. In the time he was employed, he did not work any split shift rosters.

Split shift rosters were overwhelmingly supported by the employees, this was indicated by the last EBA vote for which 97% supported the concept.

Aerocare have stated that in 22 years and despite handling over 20 million flights, Aerocare have never been penalised for a safety related issue.

Aviation Security

While no security issues were raised in the ABC program, the Office of Transport Security will, as part of its regulatory regime examine any issues arising out of the program.

Industrial Relations

Aerocare is currently in negotiations with employees over its next collective wages agreement and has flagged a pay increase of at least 5% and to increase minimum shift duration.

The Transport Workers Union has indicated that Aerocare’s shorter shifts and part-time hiring policy at airports is consistent with the “Americanisation” of work practices in Australia.

Dear Minister/ Staff

I act for Aerocare Flight Support Pty Ltd.

As the Minister is aware from the recent ABC 7.30 Report (21/03/17) and questions referred to the Minister in Question Time last week, Aerocare is the target of story which is objectively inaccurate and misleading. Given that Aerocare has been informed that a further story is to be aired by the 7.30 Report and given that the TWU affiliated s.47F(1) has requested further information from the company, we would like to provide a Ministerial Briefing note on the matter to the Minister and also to Minister Cash and to the Prime Minister.

Minister Cash's office has already been in contact and provided contact details and we would be obliged to receive the Minister's details at your convenience.

Kind regards

Dear [47F(1)]

Further to our meeting shortly:

The following was sent to [47F(1)] this morning:

Thanks [47F(1)]

The data provided does not correlate and appears wildly inaccurate and would undoubtedly be misleading if presented to anyone – layperson or expert alike. Those levels would be very high for the overall Company, let alone a single port. Additionally, there are over 200 staff of the classifications outlined at Sydney International.

Aerocare’s employee safety performance is most transparently benchmarked via workers’ compensation insurance premiums, which are a function of injury frequency and severity (relative to hours worked). Workers compensation is independently verified by government entities.

Aerocare’s key injury metrics are shown in the table below. We strongly encourage the ABC to verify these injury claims and premium rates with the various WorkSafe / WorkCover regulators in each state. In addition, we encourage you to provide this audited factual information to any workplace safety experts you have for comment.

I am also attaching a document with an overview of Aerocare’s approach to injury reporting.

Finally, we would also encourage you to approach IATA regarding the requirements and outcomes of their review that resulted in the ISAGO designation.

I am anticipating ‘round 2’ of the ABC/TWU campaign against Aerocare to air tonight. We have sent the following to media outlets (without the legal letters). We don’t anticipate any uptake, but hope it will deflate the ABC’s balloon a little.

Aerocare, alongside Australian airport authorities, today confirmed that claims of employee sleeping “camps” at its airport facilities were totally without foundation.
The Company provided the results of an extensive investigation into recent disturbing media footage of improvised sleeping arrangements, allegedly within one of its airport areas, having worked in parallel with Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane and Perth airports and the Australian Border Force to conduct the investigation.

All parties confirm that after careful physical inspection and review of surveillance footage and digital records they have found nothing to substantiate the existence of “camps” where people are sleeping on site or any similar practices at any of these locations. A Media Statement is attached.

The original allegation was aired on the ABC’s 7.30 Report program, and is part of a campaign by the TWU to undermine Aerocare during its EBA negotiations with its employees.

Despite the material in the original story being untrue and misleading The 7.30 Report is understood to be preparing to air a second story with further claims against Aerocare, which the company strongly refutes and has repeatedly provided comprehensive factual rebuttals to over the last few days that we feel may well be ignored in favour of sensationalism.

The ABC claim to have information from a reliable source purporting to have drawn information from inside Aerocare but have not shared the information with Aerocare and the data summary they provided was wildly inaccurate and in no way a match to our audited injury records. Our concern is that there is more union-driven fabrication or deception as has been demonstrated to be the case regarding the allegations of systemic employee “camping” from the first episode.

Aerocare has written to the 7.30 Report on two occasions, and the letters are attached as background.

Regards,

Ministerial Briefing

TO:

The Honourable Michaelia Cash, Minister for Employment, Minister for Women and Minister Assisting the Prime Minister for the Public Service

The Honourable Darren Chester, Minister for Infrastructure and Transport

Executive Summary

1. Aerocare Flight Support Pty Ltd (Aerocare) is an Australian private company; which over 25 years has grown from a small business "mop & bucket" aircraft cleaning business to a major participant in the Australian aviation industry, employing nearly 3,000 workers across 35 airports in Australia and New Zealand and servicing the needs of numerous Australian and international airlines.

Aerocare competes for work with the internal ground services arms of Qantas and Virgin; and with a variety of Australian and international aviation support companies, such as the Emirates—owned Dnata and UK publically listed company Menzies.

Aerocare has always operated in compliance with applicable Industrial relations laws. Its current enterprise agreement, the Aerocare Collective Agreement 2012, nominally expired on 19 February 2017; however in accordance with that agreement Aerocare entered into bargaining with the Transport Workers Union (TWU) and Australian Services Union (ASU) prior to the expiry; and bargaining is ongoing despite the TWU's current media campaign against Aerocare.

2. Aerocare was the subject of a story on the ABC's 7.30 Report (21/03/17) that:
   a. Raised two incidents involving Aerocare – a pushback of a Tigerair passenger jet with an unsecured cargo door at Brisbane Airport in 2014 and height clearance collision of a mobile mobility loading platform at Sydney Airport in 2015;
   b. Raised insinuations that incidents such as these, were due to worker fatigue;
   c. Made further insinuations that fatigue amongst Aerocare baggage handlers was due to employees working split shifts;
   d. Raised allegations that Aerocare baggage handlers were "resting" between split shifts in makeshift, unsanitary, secret "camps"; and
   e. Afforded the TWU the opportunity to raise untrue allegations that:
      i. Aerocare workers are unlawfully being paid below the applicable Award;
      ii. Aerocare workers are being exploited with a risk to the health and safety of the flying public; and
      iii. Customer airlines were risking their reputations by engaging Aerocare to provide services.

3. The 7.30 Report relied on the commentary of one identified interviewee, \[S.47F(1)\] and two unidentified interviewees (an alleged current Aerocare employee and an alleged former employee) and the General Secretary of the TWU, \[S.47F(1)\]

In relation to those interviewed:
a. stated that by giving the interview he was placing his employment at risk — however if this is the case, it is not employment with Aerocare, as he abandoned his casual employment with Aerocare in June 2016 (he failed to return after an approved absence, failed to respond to emails and calls regarding further rostering of casual hours and was seen working for a competitor). To Aerocare’s knowledge, is presently employed with one of Aerocare’s direct competitors, a subsidiary of the . Further, was only ever employed in a truck driver role (so never worked as a baggage handler), was not a witness to either of the reported incidents and has no demonstrated expertise to be able to comment on the cause, nature or seriousness of those incidents;

b. The unidentified witnesses made comments about safety without establishing whether they were employed at the time of the two incidents, were witnesses to them, or have any qualifications or expertise allowing them to comment on the cause, nature or seriousness of those incidents. Indeed if they are in fact baggage handlers they are decidedly unlikely to have any such expertise etc;

c. According to Aerocare’s records, has never exercised a Right of Entry for discussions or work health and safety issues (or for any other reason) and has no personal or direct knowledge of working conditions at any of Aerocare’s workplaces at any major Australian airport.

4. The 7.30 Report showed a number of photographs and video footage of a purported makeshift "camp" at Sydney airport; however the photographer was not identified, nor where and when the photographs/footage was taken; and none of those interviewed stated that they had in fact "slept" at the photographed "camp" at any time or that it was in fact a "camp" created by Aerocare workers.

It is further to be noted that it is an offence under airport security to take photographs in an "airside" security area; and that airport security and the Australian Federal Police routinely patrol airside security areas and would have taken action had any such "camp" been identified/discovered.

Similarly Aerocare conducts routine managerial inspections of Aerocare work areas and at no time had any such camp been located within an Aerocare airside work area.

As such, there is a strong possibility that the photographs/footage are not recent, do not relate to Aerocare and could well be staged given the TWU’s current campaign against Aerocare.

5. The two incidents raised by the 7.30 Report, did not put the public or other workers at serious risk due to the multiple layers of oversight, supervision, safety and security. Independent review of both incidents did not result in any prosecution or penalty against Aerocare.

Further:

a. in 25 years of operations and despite handling over a million flights, Aerocare has never been penalised for a safety related issue;

b. In 2016 Aerocare was subjected to and passed over 180 safety and security-related audits (See Appendix 1);
c. Aerocare is the only Australian-owned handler registered to the top global standard – IATA Safety Audit for Ground Operations (ISAGO) (See Appendix 2); and

d. Aerocare’s approach to safety is acknowledged by the Australian aviation industry with numerous awards and commendations (See Appendix 3).

6. At all times, and as is spelled out in the current Aerocare Collective Agreement 2012 (and in the current draft 2017 enterprise agreement); it is at the employee’s option to agree to work split shifts.

7. There is no empirical or academic evidence that working split shifts of the nature offered by Aerocare causes worker fatigue or fatigue increasing the risk of accidents or injuries.

Indeed, Aerocare’s lost-time injury frequency rate (LTIFR) is well below industry averages.

8. For the ABC to raise the above insinuations and allegations without expert analysis or corroborated evidence is, in Aerocare’s view, in breach of the ABC’s Code of Conduct. Accordingly a formal complaint has been lodged with ABC management and with Medialwatch. If Aerocare is not satisfied with ABC management’s response, a complaint will be pursued with ACMA.

9. Aerocare is of the belief that it is being targeted by the Transport Workers Union in a campaign to generate membership to the commercial detriment and embarrassment of the company.

Factual Matrix

ABC 7.30 Report (20/03/17)

10. This is a link to the ABC 7.30 Report and transcript of 20th March 2017.

http://www.abc.net.au/7.30/content/2017/s4639390.htm?source=rss

An analysis of the story and the unsubstantiated, uncorroborated and false allegations are identified in Appendix 4.

The footage used by the ABC

11. The ABC has claimed that its material had not come from the TWU. However the TWU’s own press release says:

“Footage obtained by the TWU and shown on ABC 7.30 shows workers forced to sleep near baggage carousels at the airport because of low paid, part-time and insecure work.”

12. The Footage provided by the TWU purported to show filthy and improvised sleeping arrangements said to be within the baggage handling area at Sydney Airport and used by Aerocare workers between split shifts.

13. Aerocare was not made aware that 7.30 had this footage or that 7.30 would be using it to anchor their story. With no right of reply, Aerocare was unable to correct the allegations or to point out that the people shown in the images were not Aerocare workers until after broadcasting.

14. The baggage handling area at Sydney Airport is accessed and used by employees from the many companies that service the airport and is patrolled by Australian Border Force and Airport Security.

15. Aerocare’s investigations, alongside those of Sydney Airport and Australian Border Force, confirm that there is no evidence of the alleged employee “camps” depicted in the media last week. The footage supplied by the TWU to the 7.30 Report appears to not have been filmed recently.

16. Even if scenes like this may have existed at some point in time in the past somewhere at an Australian airport, and even then if they had in some way involved Aerocare employees, these are not working conditions that are supported or condoned in any way by Aerocare or by Australian airport security.

17. Aerocare provides a comfortable, air conditioned, catered lounge for the use of its staff. (Photos of Sydney Airport employee rest area for Aerocare are in Appendix 10). Aerocare is not aware of any of its employees sleeping between shifts in the manner depicted and does not permit its employees to do so.

18. Aerocare can confirm that the individual shown in the footage was not an Aerocare employee.

19. Aerocare continues to investigate other recent media reports that claim that some workers have been sleeping on site or in their cars because of the length of time between split shifts.

Split Shifts – Sydney Airport

20. Much of the 7.30 Report’s focus centred on the potential for the gaps between split shifts to lead to unacceptable worker behaviour and fatigue. It is common practice in the aviation industry in Australia, and elsewhere in the world, for aviation support workers such as Aerocare staff to work more than one shift in a day (split shifts), given rosters are determined by fluctuating flight schedules.

21. For example it generally takes three hours to fully service an international aircraft, so longer shifts in relation to such aircraft are not justified or sustainable. Shorter shifts are sometimes required to meet the demands of airline customers.

22. Many of Aerocare’s competitors and other industry participants allow for and engage in split shifts in their rostering. Some larger competitors are able to sustain a higher proportion of longer single shifts as they have more contracts that deliver more consistent flight schedules and higher revenue.

23. Aerocare has spent millions of dollars improving its rostering system to maximise the duration of employee shifts. Since its last enterprise agreement, which was fully approved by the Fair Work Commission in 2013, Aerocare has seen average shift lengths increase as the company has won more contracts and work.
24. The choice to work split shifts was included in Aerocare’s last (and still current) enterprise agreement, and was voted in favour for by 97% of all employees. Such shifts are entirely at the employees’ option.

25. In the draft enterprise agreement currently in negotiation, Aerocare has committed to increase minimum shifts from 3 hours to 4 hours, and the company’s intent is to make individual shifts last as long as possible.

26. The ABC story focussed on Sydney airport. To put the allegations of any alleged link between split shifts, fatigue and opportunity to “sleep” (if there is indeed any need for same); a review of Aerocare’s shifts at Sydney Airport over the previous 6 months reveal:

- There was 31,785 shifts worked totalling 179,317 hours (not including meal break)
- There were 3,829 instances of more than one shift worked in a day
- The average gap between the two shifts was 1.7 hours, the median was 1.17 hours and the maximum was 9 hours
- There were only 204 occasions where the gap was > 5 hours
- There were 2,732 occasions where the gap was <=2 hours

27. The ABC story focussed on was represented to be a current Aerocare truck driver. That is not the case. worked briefly for Aerocare in 2016, commencing on 26 April 2016 and he worked his last shift on 19 June 2016. At that time he requested not to be rostered until further notice as could not work in the immediate future due to personal commitments. He was then removed from rostering for the following 4 week Roster Period. He indicated that he would likely be available for further rostering after 28 June 2016. Attempts were made to contact at that time but all were unsuccessful. He was then seen working at Sydney airport with a competitor of Aerocare. He was accordingly recorded in Aerocare’s systems as having abandoned his employment.

28. Over his span of 56 days employment, which was all covered by his probation, he worked 28 shifts of which:

- no shifts were ‘split shifts’
- The average shift length was 6.7 hours
- He never worked more than 4 consecutive days
- Most shifts were 7.5 hours in length
- For all of his shifts he was engaged in either training (classroom) or buddy training. At no point was he rostered to work in any role that would require him to access the baggage makeup areas.

A screen capture of his final shifts appears in Appendix 5.

16. To Aerocare’s knowledge, is presently employed with one of Aerocare’s direct competitors, a subsidiary of the
17. During his employment with Aerocare, was not engaged in baggage handling and he had no access to the baggage areas he talked about in the story. He worked in the catering truck segment.

18. made the comment:

“That’s barely enough time to sleep, by the time you get home and get up and go to work again. So we end up sleeping underneath the terminal where all the baggage goes in between, just to catch up on sleep”.

19. The 7.30 Report did not advise viewers that had misrepresented himself and that he worked for a competitor at the time of the interview.

20. never had reason to sleep at work between shifts, as he never once worked a split shift in his short time with the company.

Aerocare’s response to the story and position generally

17. Statement by Aerocare CEO Glenn Rutherford:

“The Australian aviation sector is the safest and one of the most highly regulated and audited of its type in the world. While we recognize that incidents can and do occur, Aerocare’s commitment to continual improvement and investment in safety systems and processes has been a significant factor in the industry’s consistent and continual improvement in this most crucial area.”

“I am therefore deeply concerned by any allegations of safety deficiency and poor employee work conditions, as looking after the welfare and safety of every single employee and the broader travelling public is my most important job.”

“We will continue to investigate any claims thoroughly. That said, I have worked for this company for many years - starting as a baggage handler. In 25 years of operation that have seen us handle over one million flights, Aerocare has never been penalised for a safety related issue and is widely considered as a leader in safety by customers and regulators.”

Aerocare’s Industry-Leading Commitment to Safety

18. Aerocare places the highest emphasis on safety, especially where its staff and the broader travelling public are involved, and is gravely concerned by any allegation or misrepresentation that might suggest otherwise. Since inception, Aerocare’s first priority has been its commitment to ensuring that all employees are fully trained, well informed and given the best possible safety conditions in what is a complex and potentially hazardous working environment.

19. To support this organisational priority, Aerocare has invested in creating a team of dedicated specialist safety personnel and world-class proprietary training and compliance systems at a cost of many millions of dollars. The effectiveness of this investment is evidenced by the company’s safety track record, which has never seen any penalty or loss of contract for safety related issues in 25 years of operation.

20. In addition, Aerocare also points to the following facts:
a. Aerocare is fully compliant with Australian Occupational Health and Security regulations, Australia’s Civil Aviation Safety Authority (CASA) regulations, and all other applicable work health and safety regulations and can provide evidence of this;

b. Aerocare additionally complies with all additional and complimentary requirements of each or its client airline partners, which are often based on international criteria;

c. As an airline ground handling service provider, Aerocare is subjected to more audits and scrutiny than the airlines themselves, given the additional layer of customer airline audit. Aerocare was subjected to over 180 safety and security-related audits by regulators, government departments and airlines in 2016, in addition to its own continuous internal investigations and reviews. Auditors included CASA, Workplace Health and Safety (various states and territories), the Office of Transport Security, Qantas, Virgin, Jetstar, Tigerair, AirAsia, Scoot, Air New Zealand, Fiji Airways, Hawaiian Airlines, Cebu Pacific, Air Vanuatu, Silk Air, Hong Kong Airlines, Qatar Airways, US Transport Security Administration, Singaporean Civil Aviation Authority, NZ Civil Aviation Authority, and Australian Biosecurity (Copies of a variety of audit report clearances are attached at Appendix 1);

d. Aerocare’s most recent comprehensive end-to-end safety management system audits performed by two of its largest customers had zero deficiency findings, which we understand is unprecedented in the Australian context;

e. Aerocare is the only Australian-owned IATA Safety Audit for Ground Operations (ISAGO) registered handler. This designation is awarded by the peak global aviation body IATA and requires the handler to have met strict standards in safety compliance and performance as assessed by qualified independent auditors (A copy of the certification is attached in Appendix 2).

Employee Safety and Work Conditions

21. Aerocare’s lost-time injury frequency rate (LTIFR) – the most accepted measure of relative employee work conditions – is well below comparable aviation industry rates and also well below national competitor rates. Aerocare’s latest annual result of <2.7 events across the company for every one million hours worked, is less than a third of the published industry average of 9.1 events/one million hours. Further, Aerocare’s LTIFR rate continues to decline despite strong growth in its employee base.

22. Aerocare’s national 2015/2016 insurance premium rate for workers’ compensation is 28% better than the national average industry rate for “Services to Air Transport.” This is objective market-based evidence that Aerocare is significantly better than its competitors in injury prevention and return-to-work outcomes.

23. Aerocare has strongly promoted an open and healthy staff incident reporting culture. Aerocare is often praised by our customers for its transparency.

24. No Aerocare employee was ever found occupying a makeshift bed as depicted in the 7.30 Report footage.

In any event it seems absurd that at Sydney Airport (due to the 7.30 Report being focussed there) that any Aerocare staff member would not avail them selves of the staff lounge in their staff room or even the facilities of the terminal instead of a dirty concrete floor surrounded with rubbish. The Sydney staff room, as in many of the other major ports, has tea and coffee making and kitchen facilities and space to comfortably relax if and when a split shift is being performed, noting again that in the vast majority of cases the average time between split shifts is less than 2 hours (See photos in Appendix 10).

Specific Incidents Raised by ABC 7.30 Report 20/03/17

25. Aerocare currently performs over 170,000 flight turn arounds each year. In as complex an environment as an airport, it is unfortunately unavoidable that safety-related events occasionally occur, although Aerocare’s data and customer feedback indicates that such events occur less frequently than with any of its competitors.

Brisbane cargo door incident 2014

26. In November 2014, a Tigerair aircraft was pushed back a short distance from the Brisbane domestic terminal before the pilots became aware a cargo door was open as part of their pre-flight checks. Cockpit systems indicated the cargo door was open well before the aircraft began to taxi. Air traffic control also contacted the cockpit to advise of the cargo door status. Pushback procedures ceased immediately, the engine was shut down, cargo door closed and the aircraft resumed its journey without further issue.

27. The incident was reported to the Australian air safety regulator, the ATSB, as a routinely reportable matter. The ATSB decided the matter did not warrant further investigation. The airline was also confident that all appropriate actions were taken to rectify the problem.

28. Contrary to the insinuations of the 7.30 Report, safety of the aircraft’s crew, passengers and ground staff was never at risk. There was no risk of an aircraft departure with the cargo door open. That is why the Regulator took no further action beyond the initial reporting. There are multi-layered and overlapping procedural checks and balances with Aerocare, the airlines and the airports to ensure this is the case.

29. A detailed review was also subsequently undertaken by Aerocare and Tigerair; and additional procedural improvements were introduced to further mitigate the risk of any repeat future occurrence.

Disabled persons lift incident 2015

30. A disabled persons lift was being towed between gates in preparation for a later flight and, in contravention to operating procedure, the driver decided to take a “short-cut” that saw the top of the lift hit an aerobridge. No one was on the lift at the time of the incident, and no one was injured, the lift was not destroyed and there was no material damage to any airport property (See photos in Appendix 9). As the event was caused by an error in judgment despite adequate training and culture, the employee involved was coached to assist them in making better decisions.

31. The 7.30 Report presented that a disabled lift had been “cut in half” when in fact it was only knocked on its side and later reinstated after colliding with an aerobridge. Reviews showed the incident had been caused by driver error not by fatigue.
32. No aircraft was involved in this incident and there was no material damage to the aerobridge. It was dishonest for 7.30 Report to refer to this as “a serious accident” which could cause “harm and damage to airline (sic) or people travelling on that airline”.

Conclusions on the Two Identified Incidents

33. Both incidents were investigated and documented in detail by Aerocare’s safety team and by the airlines, who in turn report all such incidents to CASA and/or the airports. Both incident responses were handled correctly internally and with the regulators and airlines concerned.

Importantly, the incident auditors did not find any systemic evidence of deficient procedure and also verified that deficient employee training or fatigue were not in any way contributing factors.

Aerocare’s Approach to Safety

34. Aerocare’s approach to safety is through a continual improvement loop; and its audit results are direct evidence that its performance is top-tier if not best-in-class. Additional information on this topic can be found at our website

(http://aerocare.com.au/category/news/) and in our corporate brochure

Set out below is a summary of material safety-related news over the last twelve months as evidence of Aerocare’s ongoing commitment and investment in safety processes:

35. February 2017: Aerocare invested in industry-leading technology to improve adverse weather monitoring at highest adverse weather risk airports, allowing necessary and timely precautions to ensure the safety and wellbeing of staff during storms, as well as protecting aircraft and ground equipment and providing information to other airport stakeholders. As a result of Aerocare’s partnership with UBIMET, the most advanced lightning detection system in Australia, UBIMET are continuing to update their product to provide the best lightning data from which staff can make effective and safe decisions.

Aerocare has since introduced other airlines to UBIMET. No competitor or like operator has, as yet, made an investment of this type;

36. December 2016: Aerocare was shortlisted for the second year running for the Ground Handling International Ramp Safety Awards for The Far East, India and Australasia. Although Aerocare as a whole was nominated and commended for its firm-wide performance, specific recognition was also made of Aerocare’s Canberra operation, where an Aerocare ramp prevented the likely collision of two aircraft after one was incorrectly given clearance by a tower operator and began taxiing behind another aircraft;

37. October 2016: Comprehensive end-to-end organizational audit (including safety systems) by two of Aerocare’s largest client airlines resulted in nil adverse findings and several commendations (unprecedented in the Australian context);

38. September 2016: Aerocare won 4 out of 8 possible awards at the QantasLink Regional Airports Ground Handling Conference, in recognition of service, safety reporting, safety health checks and compliance to safety procedures;
39. March 2016: Aerocare was registered as an ISAGO provider (International Air Transport Association (IATA) Safety Audit of Ground Operations – ISAGO), recognising Aerocare's commitment to a world class safety culture (See Appendix 2).

Aerocare’s Ongoing Commitment to Employees

40. Consistent with its exemplary 25 year industrial relations and compliance record, Aerocare is again committed to delivering significant wage increases as against the applicable Modern Award in the enterprise agreement currently in bargaining to cover over 2,000 employees across Australia.

The company is proposing to increase rates across the board by at least 5% (on top of the benefits of tenure-based increases), to increase minimum shift duration, and to introduce significant additional long service bonuses.

41. Pay levels will continue to exceed Modern Award conditions and the Fair Work Commission's Better Off Overall Test (BOOT) requirements. The company's current draft agreement also provides for additional annual length of service increases of 2.5% - 4% for 4 years.

42. These commitments are being made as its large global competitors are actively announcing their intention to cut costs and reduce wages (see Appendix 6 – Dnata memo 1 March 2017).

43. The majority of Aerocare employees are now employed on a permanent, part-time basis, with approximately one-third of its workforce on full-time equivalent hours. Aerocare remains committed to all employees having permanent positions. This is evidenced by the fact that the company offers on an ongoing basis the opportunity for casual employees to convert to permanent employment, at any time, on their election.

44. Aerocare strongly refutes any allegations or assertions in ABC’s 7.30 Report program and by the TWU elsewhere inferring poor treatment or under-payment of its employees and, in turn, would like to point to the following facts:

   a. There have never been any findings against the company in relation to labour practices or wage payments, nor has there been any application by employees to Aerocare or to the Fair Work Commission itself as is provided in the current agreement’s dispute resolution clause;

   b. Alongside permanent full-time positions wherever possible, Aerocare does employ numerous employees on a permanent part-time basis, which is driven by the needs of airline customers, with rosters determined by flight schedules. It is to be noted that it generally takes three hours to fully service an international aircraft;

   c. Alongside heavy investment in new equipment and recruitment, training and HR technologies, Aerocare has invested millions of dollars to improve the quality of its rostering so as to maximise the duration of shifts; with the goal of securing more contracts which would enable Aerocare to offer employees longer shifts and viable full-time positions as a result;

   d. 97% of Aerocare's employees voted in favour of the current enterprise agreement (for which the replacement is now in bargaining), which delivered better wages and, as industry developments have shown, better job security and working conditions.
than many of Aerocare's competitors. Despite the present TWU campaign against the company, Aerocare is confident there will be a similar level of support for the agreement currently under negotiation, as has been the case in six prior EBA negotiations over 25 years. It is also worth noting that Aerocare's 97% approval rate of the current agreement contrasts with that of industry competitors who have typically had at a much lower level of support/ approval.

e. It is worth noting that a number of Aerocare's competitors continue to operate on expired or below-award, non-certified agreements, some of which cover unions.

Indeed as of 20 March 2017, Senior Deputy President Hamburger in the Fair Work Commission made an order that Aerocare's current agreement apply in lieu of the Oceania Aviation Services Staff Agreement 2010 – 2013 to Oceania employees coming across to work for Aerocare at Broome Airport, where remaining Oceania employees continue to be paid under an agreement, which covers the ASU, which nominally expired approximately 4 years ago (see Appendix 7 – Decision AG217/589).

f. The Fair Work Commission has previously found that Aerocare's current agreement delivers above Award conditions to employees; with the Fair Work Commission's Vice President stating in ratifying the agreement on 12 February 2013:

"I have weighed the respective advantages and disadvantages under the Agreement compared to the Award. In my view the benefits of the Agreement are substantial. I have also considered the detailed evidence and calculations provided in the proceedings which assists in assessing the extent of the benefits and the disadvantages. I note that in relation to minimum shift lengths the basis of these calculations adopt the unions' proposals regarding financial impact. Having regard to all of the circumstances I am satisfied that each Award covered employee and each prospective Award covered employee would be better off overall if the agreement applied than if the Award applied. In my view the Agreement satisfies the BOOT. I am satisfied that each Award covered employee and each prospective Award covered employee would be better off overall if the agreement applied than if the Award applied."

g. In a further decision relating to the employment of new workers inherited from a smaller competitor that would likely have failed without Aerocare's intervention, the Fair Work Commission, on 4th November 2015 stated that:

"Aerocare is a large national employer in this industry. It operates under formal enterprise agreements. It has been able to grow its business through flexible innovative employment arrangements. Its agreements have passed legislative approval tests."

45. In conclusion, Aerocare observes that despite the current allegations being raised by former or unidentified and unconfirmed employees and the TWU, there is no genuine substance to them.

In relation to safety, aside from two sensationalised incidents of no currency/ in excess of 2 years old, the 7.30 Report relies upon unqualified comments of interviewees of unestablished or discredited credibility. Against this is the company's provided evidence of audit clearance, safety awards and industry acknowledgements.
In relation to pay and terms and conditions under a current enterprise agreement, the 7.30 Report offered no evidence of underpayment or breaches of the agreement and the TWU, despite having access to a dispute resolution clause in the current agreement, has taken no action in the Fair Work Commission in support of any such allegation.

7.30 REPORT'S LACK OF BALANCE

46. An Aerocare employee who called ABC reporter \textsuperscript{47F(1)} to tell him about their experience with Aerocare and how it had good work practices was told words to the effect:

"Not to bother. We have 10 people coming forward to substantiate the claims made on the program for everyone trying to defend the company."

The employee asked to be put on air with his point of view. \textsuperscript{47F(1)} asked them to send an email.

47. The 7.30 Report has been advised that the promotion of this "story" for publication through them is part of a TWU campaign to undermine Aerocare's EBA process. The 7.30 Report does not currently accept this despite the TWU itself launching a targeted pamphlet campaign publicly taking credit for providing the 7.30 Report with the footage that underpins the accusations.

48. In Appendix 11 is a copy of correspondence from Aerocare's media lawyers Johnson Winter Slattery addressing the lack of integrity, responsibility and accuracy required of the ABC by its own Code of Practice.

Pending further ABC 7.30 Report

49. Aerocare is on notice that the ABC/ 7.30 Report intend to air a further story critical of Aerocare and its safety record. Aerocare, to the extent that it has (limited) visibility of what the ABC intends to broadcast, has again responded via its media lawyers, Johnson Winter Slattery, in correspondence dated 30 March 2017 and also attached in Appendix 11.

TWU/ UNION ABSENCE FROM THE WORKPLACE

50. Set out in Appendix 8 is a listing of TWU rights of entry for Brisbane, Gold Coast, Sydney, Melbourne, Canberra, Adelaide and Perth Airports.

The numbers and timing speak for themselves — in actual fact the TWU has no capacity to directly comment on working conditions of Aerocare workers at the major airports because their personal observations are either non-existent or long out of currency.

TWU HARASSMENT AND INTIMIDATION OF STAFF

It has come to Aerocare's attention that a number of its employees who have decided to voice their contrary views to those published in the 7.30 Report and on the TWU website have been intimidated by replies stating that their details had been "screenshot" for further reference or deleted. Many have also been contacted at their private email addresses by the TWU in circumstances where they have not previously provided their emails to the union or consented to the union contacting them.

Aerocare has thanked those staff for their support but not encouraged them to engage with the union through social media. Further, those staff concerned about the responses they have received have been directed to the Office of the Australian Privacy Commissioner.
GENDER EQUITY

51. Although not addressed in the ABC stories, as the Honourable Senator Cash is the relevant Minister for Women, it is worthwhile also bringing to her attention Aerocare’s position as a leading gender equity employer, which is detailed in the company’s most recent filed report with the Regulator:

A copy of the report is appended in full at Appendix 12.

Aerocare wins four of eight QantasLink awards

15 SEPTEMBER 2018

Aerocare has won four of the eight awards announced at this year's QantasLink Regional Airlines Ground Handling Conference in Sydney last week.

Aerocare CEO Glenn Rutherford said: 'Considering our relatively short history with QantasLink and the fact that we received 50 per cent of the awards, we only handle 12 per cent of their airports makes this a truly remarkable achievement.'

I wish to sincerely congratulate and thank our team members at Sunshine Coast, Cairns Harbour, Mackay, and Nelson Airports for their excellent work in achieving this result,' Mr Rutherford said.

- Sunshine Coast Airport received an Outstanding Airport Award for outstanding ground services across all areas, with special mention made of the high-performance and low-cost management of services last year.
- Cairns Harbour received the Most Improved Airport Award for having the highest calibre of ground handling performance.
- Mackay Airport received an Outstanding Airport Award for carrying out health checks. The QantasLink auditor said that in many years of auditing, it was the first time he had been to an airport and couldn't find a single concern.
- Nelson Airport BHD received an Outstanding Airport Award for the best safety reporting rate in the network.

The awards were presented by QantasLink CEO of Ground Handling Simon Ambrose at the airline's annual Regional Ground Handling Conference event.

Aerocare is the largest ground handler within the Australian and New Zealand regions, with more than 3,000 team members currently servicing 3,000 flights per week and 45,000 passengers per day.

Private: Aerocare wins five of nine Jetstar Ground Handling Awards

Aerocare has won five of nine awards presented by Jetstar CEO Dean Seltzer at the airline’s annual ground handling conference in Melbourne earlier this week.

Aerocare CEO Gemm Barchett said: “The awards success highlights that Aerocare is performing well across the Jetstar network and we are doing very strongly in all areas – service, safety and performance.”

“Our offices in Darwin, Auckland, Queenstown, Hobart and the Sunshine Coast should feel extremely proud of this achievement, having been acknowledged at standard performance by several measures in a strong field,” he Barchett said.

The five awards were as follows:

- Sunshine Coast Airport was recognised for having the highest safety reporting levels, which Jetstar views as a critical factor in maintaining safe operations.
- Darwin Airport was recognised for customer satisfaction improvement.
- Adelaide Airport was recognised for having the best turnaround time, which Jetstar said was the purest measurement of an operation’s on-time performance.
- Queenstown Airport was recognised for compliance to bagage and passenger check-in rules.
- Auckland Airport was recognised for continual improvement in on-time performance over the past 12 months.

The awards were presented at Jetstar’s annual Ground Handling Conference in Melbourne which brings together the airline’s internal and external ground handling teams.

APPENDIX 4 – Transcript of ABC 7.30 Report, with commentary/responses

TRANSCRIPT (FROM ABC WEBSITE)

LEIGH SALES, PRESENTER: When we fly, we want to arrive safely at our destination, on time. And the cheaper the ticket, the better. We don't often think that much about the workers getting the plane into the air. But this next story may change that.

Aerocare is a large Australian company that proudly contracts its services to Tigerair, Virgin, Qantas, Jetstar and Singapore Airlines, to name a few. A side to Aerocare you won't see on their website is staff on low pay, working split shifts, sleeping at work beside baggage carousels (sic), inside luggage containers and on the floor of offices. It's all legal, but workers claim the conditions are causing life-threatening mistakes.

And tonight, workers are risking their jobs to speak out publicly for the first time. James Thomas reports.

JAMES THOMAS, REPORTER: What sort of a risk are you taking, speaking publicly?

AEROCARE WORKER: Yeah, I... I will... I will lose my job.

JAMES THOMAS: is a truck driver employed by Aerocare. Aerocare is an Australian company with more than 2,000 workers. They are the human engine of the airport - moving baggage, loading passengers, and doing safety checks on the planes we fly. Qantas, Virgin, Jetstar, Tigerair, Singapore Airlines - they all contract Aerocare to ensure travellers get on their planes, and on their way, safe and sound. But few travellers know what some of these workers endure...

It's filthy, it's cold, it's dark, it's just absolutely horrible. You can see rat droppings and garbage everywhere.

JAMES THOMAS: Makeshift beds by the baggage carousel, dirty sheets on concrete floors. For some shift workers at Australia's busiest airports, this is where they sleep.

It's definitely not conditions that people, in this day and age, especially in Australia, would even think are going on here. It's unimaginable.

2 No evidence of Aerocare workers doing so, despite the assertion.
3 No evidence of Aerocare workers doing so, despite the assertion.
4 No evidence of Aerocare workers doing so, despite the assertion.
5 There are safety rules and regulations against such conduct, which is why it is not allowed/tolerated.
6 No proof that the claims come from current Aerocare employees - only persons identified so far are former employees with clear contrary interests (such as working for a direct competitor).
7 No evidence of the legitimacy of such claims or objective expert evidence in support.
8 There is no such risk with Aerocare.
9 Is labelled by the ABC as an Aerocare worker when he is not.
10 Is not an employee of Aerocare, so he can only mean with his current employer or else this is misleading.
11 No he is not - Not rostered since June 2016, listed internally as abandoned employment as of August 2016 - uncontactable and seen working for a competitor.
12 Overstates Aerocare's role in safety beyond loading/unloading.
13 Where is referring to? He does not identify where the footage is of (as we do not believe he is the photographer/taker of the film) or the basis of his identification.
14 Why? The inference is Aerocare workers do - there is no evidence of that.
15 On what basis does he have knowledge of this? He gives no evidence that he has either participated in or witnessed such behaviour beyond looking at the footage.
JAMES THOMAS: Many Aerocare workers are part-time. They are paid around $24 an hour16. But their shifts can be as short as just three hours. So, to make ends meet, they often do two shifts in one day, without going home in between.

GEORGE ORSARIS: That's barely enough time to sleep17. By the time you get home and get up and go to work again. So, we8 end up sleeping underneath the terminal, where all the baggage goes in between, just to catch up on sleep.

JAMES THOMAS: Sometimes, workers spend 14 or 15 hours at the airport for just seven or eight hours of paid work19.

TONY SHELDON, TRANSPORT WORKERS UNION: This is a terrible, terrible indictment of the Australian workforce of today. You know, the income they're guaranteed each month - a family of two would mean that they'd be earning $1,500, and they are earning $1,500 a month below the poverty line.

Well, these workers are operating under a system of both a combination of victimisation20 and also being pressured21 to work and stay at work for extraordinary hours22 because of the low income without being paid. They get short blocks of time to be...which they're fully engaged. They can't afford to go home23, because they can't afford fuel or the tolls24. And they have to be ready for the next shift.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN 1, AEROCARE WORKER: Homeless people, people in Third World countries, you could see sleeping like that. But people working permanent hours, people going to university and working 25-30 hours casually - you wouldn't expect them to be roughing like that. But just to be able to do the job and do everything else, that's what they have to do.

JAMES THOMAS: So, that's what's happening at Aerocare?

UNIDENTIFIED MAN: Yes. Yeah. We're just getting ground down. It's all about the money. It stopped being about people long ago and it's just about the money. And we're just a means to an end25.

JAMES THOMAS: We have hidden this Aerocare worker's identity because he fears losing his job for speaking out26.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN: If even a whiff of what I was doing here came across to my employers, on the spot - not even a moment's notice - just job gone. Gone27.

JAMES THOMAS: He believes conditions at Aerocare, and fatigue levels, are so bad, travellers are 16 No reference to the current Aerocare enterprise agreement.

17 Why does an employee need sleep after 3 hours work and when the average gap between shifts at Sydney airport is less than 2 hours?
18 6:47F(1) never worked a split shift so he never did/ would have.
19 This is inconsistent with the data set out above.
20 There is no evidence of victimisation provided in the story or at all.
21 Untrue – the current enterprise agreement states no coercion and no dispute as to its operation has been raised under its provisions.
22 This is inconsistent with the data set out above.
23 There is no evidence of this and due to the small average gap between shifts, they would be unlikely to do so.
24 This is no evidence of this. Additionally there is no reference to the fact that Aerocare paid all bar $2 of their car parking.
25 If this is the current Aerocare employee, the indications are that it is a Brisbane airport employee and there is no allegation of similar arrangements occurring at Brisbane Airport.
26 What proof does the ABC have that he is a current Aerocare worker? Did they sight his current roster or payslip to prove it?
27 On what basis does he say that or does the ABC report that?
at risk²⁸.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN: We could cause a serious accident. We could cause possible harm and damage to airline or people travelling on that airline²⁹.

JAMES THOMAS: The workers cite a number of instances. In 2015, a wheelchair lift that looks like this was driven into a bridge by an Aerocare worker. Snapped in half, this is what was left³⁰.

On the 28th of November, 2014, at Brisbane Domestic Airport, an Aerocare team had begun pushing back a fully-loaded Tigerair A320 in preparation for take-off, with one crucial problem – the cargo door was still wide open³¹.

s.47F(1) Word gets spread around quite quickly that Aerocare boys left the cargo door open on pushback³².

JAMES THOMAS: As the plane was being pushed towards the runway, the open door was detected by the plane’s crew and air-traffic control. The take-off was aborted.

s.47F(1) If it was missed and the plane was to take off down the runway, I’d hate to think what would happen. It’s extremely serious³³.

JAMES THOMAS: Tigerair says it did report the incident to the Australian Transport Safety Bureau. Three days ago, the bureau told 7.30 the incident wasn’t a safety matter because the door was closed, just not locked.

But today, the bureau backtracked, conceding the door was open. It said there was no need, however, to investigate further because the problem was detected before take-off.

The Aerocare workers we spoke to strongly disagree with the safety bureau’s assessment.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN 2, FORMER AEROCARE WORKER: They would have fallen out of the sky³⁴.

JAMES THOMAS: That serious?

UNIDENTIFIED MAN 2: Yes.

JAMES THOMAS: Foaming repercussions. This former Aerocare worker asked us to obscure his identity. How did we get to a situation where a plane was getting pushed back with a cargo door open?

UNIDENTIFIED MAN 2: If someone said to me fatigue, exhaustion, it would not surprise me one bit³⁵.

JAMES THOMAS: Aerocare say that neither incident endangered the public, and they describe their safety record as "impeccable"³⁶. The company declined an interview and says that it believes that this story is being driven by the union, which is trying to place pressure on Aerocare because they’re in the midst of a negotiation for a new workplace agreement. It says its pay levels exceed the award, and that it is striving to improve shift conditions and strongly refutes any suggestion that it treats its workers poorly.

²⁸ How? Why? Where is the evidence of fatigue levels or of independent expert/ professional research establishing any such link/ connection?
²⁹ How? Spurious assertions with no substance or evidence.
³⁰ Apparently not a photograph of the relevant incident and raises question as to the source of the photograph (breach of security/ confidentiality)
³¹ This commentary is without access to any eyewitness.
³² s.47F(1) was not employed at Aerocare at this time (until over 1 year later).
³³ No evidence of any knowledge or expertise in relation to any aspect of this incident.
³⁴ No evidence of any knowledge or expertise to make this assertion.
³⁵ Absolutely no evidence that was the cause.
³⁶ Objectively it is impeccable.
Aerocare prides itself on safety, and the complete opposite is happening. And they don't advertise that. The airlines won't know about it.

JAMES THOMAS: What should the major airlines do?

Well, I would be ending the contracts with Aerocare immediately, because it's not worth putting your brand down, risking the safety of your passengers and, in the long run, costing you money.

LEIGH SALES: We'll keep an eye on what happens there.

37 On what basis can he assert same?
38 Strong suggestion of injurious falsehood.

Memo from the CEO
ALL STAFF ANNOUNCEMENT

For a while now I have openly communicated the challenges we face here at dnata, both financially and operationally, and the need for change. So while this may not come as a surprise, it is still a difficult message to share.

Due to our cost base we are increasingly unable to compete in this market despite our level of service. Our competitors are targeting our customers, enticing them with bonuses, free services and other incentives to win their contracts. Airlines are under great pressure to reduce costs wherever possible, while maintaining or increasing service levels.

We’ve lost several contracts and others are open which are at risk; we have tendered unsuccessfully for 20 key airline contracts and are losing out every time on cost. While we’ve won some contracts recently, this has been on the back of dnata’s global relationships and they are not enough to offset our contract losses or improve our current position. We have not recorded a profit since 2012. In the last two years, our losses have amounted to over $20 million dollars and we have had to take out bank loans just to keep afloat.

We are now in an unsustainable situation so something significant needs to happen, and soon. The dnata board wants to maintain a presence in the Australian market if possible. The board has instructed us to explore ways in which we can ensure a sustainable, viable future for dnata and our people, and we have been considering and evaluating a number of options.

Cutting overheads and investing in our business will continue to be part of the solution. We have recently opened our new cargo facility in Adelaide and made some significant investments in our Sydney cargo facility and GSE fleet. We are also looking into outsourcing options, reviewing all our agreements and testing new operating models.

Due to the urgency of the situation and as one of our options, dnata has set up another company called Airport Handling Services Australia (AHSA). AHSA will co-exist with dnata Australia, but with different terms and conditions of employment which are currently in the Fair Work Commission.

The thinking behind this option is that if we lose a current airline customer, AHSA may be able to win or retain that customer, thus keeping it with a dnata-owned business.

Next week, we will be conducting briefing sessions and presentations in all our Ports on this announcement to provide more information. We will also be looking to you, our employees, to provide your suggestions and feedback on our recovery efforts. Every idea will be explored, no matter how small. We are also meeting with the relevant Unions to discuss this announcement.

Soon we will start discussions on renegotiating our ramp & cargo, and passenger services agreements. We will invite the relevant unions and bargaining agents to help us meet the challenges we face so that we can jointly develop new and sustainable outcomes in order to ensure our viability.

We are in this together. Like you, I am disappointed and saddened by the situation, but we must remain committed to our customers and the Australian market and be realistic about how we can maintain a viable presence. Please keep the lines of communication open so that we can work on a solution as a team.

Dear [Redacted]

Aercare Pty Limited - 7.30 Program

We act for Aercare Pty Limited (Aercare).

Aercare was the subject of a story on 7.30 broadcast on 20 March 2017 entitled “Airport workers speak out about poor work conditions” (the Story).

Aercare has real concerns about the Story and its preparation.

Sources

Ms Sales introduces the Story as follows:

_and tonight, workers are risking their jobs to speak out publically for the first time._

The viewer is immediately introduced to [Redacted]

_Grace Thomas, Reporter: What sort of risk are you taking, speaking publically?_

[Redacted] _Aercare Worker: Yeah, I... I will... I will lose my job._

_Grace Thomas: [Redacted] is a truck driver employed by Aercare._

[Redacted] _is not an employee of Aercare. In fact, he is employed by Alpha Flight Services, a direct competitor and subsidiary of the Dubai based air services supplier, Dnata. [Redacted] left Aercare nine months ago, part way through his training. He was a trainee and employee over a two-month period ending June 2016 during which time he undertook only 28 continuous shifts each averaged approximately 7 hours in duration, with regular rest breaks and no split shifts. His employment was exclusively in the catering truck segment of Aercare, which had no involvement in the baggage areas that he speaks about in the Story._

_Having been presented as a current Aercare employee, speaking under risk of retribution, [Redacted] is used in the Story to make statements about the conditions of Aercare workers:_

That's barely enough time to sleep. By the time you get home and get up and go to work again, so, we end up sleeping underneath the terminal, where all the baggage goes in between, just to catch up on sleep.

As the conclusion of the Story, §47F(1) the employee of a competitor dressed as a threatened insider, is allowed to make an extraordinary, gratuitous and malicious comment about Aerocare:

Well, I would be ending the contracts with Aerocare immediately, because it's not worth putting your brand down, risking the safety of your passengers and, in the long run, costing you money.

§47F(1) is the only identifiable person presented as an Aerocare employee in the Story. In the circumstances it is understandable Aerocare has real concerns about the bona fides of the other unidentified "employees" that appear.

The sleepout footage

As well as the reliance upon §47F(1) footage of makeshift bedding beside baggage carousels and an individual sleeping in a luggage unit load container (the Footage) is shown and described:

§47F(1) It's filthy, it's cold, it's dark, it's just absolutely horrible. You can see rat droppings and garbage everywhere.

James Thomas: Makeshift beds by the baggage carousel, dirty sheets on concrete floors. For some shift workers at Australia's business airports, this is where they sleep.

§47F(1) It's definitely not conditions that people, in this day and age, especially in Australia, would even think are going on here. It's unimaginable.

The Story connects the Footage directly to Aerocare:

Unidentified Aerocare Worker: Homeless people, people in Third World countries, you could see sleeping like that. But people working permanent hours, people going to university and working 25-30 hours casually – you wouldn't expect them to be roughing like that. But just to be able to do the job and do everything else, that's what they have to do.

James Thomas: So, that's what's happening at Aerocare?

Unidentified Aerocare Worker: Yes. Yeah. We're just getting ground down. It's all about the money. It stopped being about people long ago and it's just about the money. And we're just a means to an end.

James Thomas: We have hidden this Aerocare worker's identity because he fears losing his job for speaking out.

Aerocare had no knowledge of the sleeping arrangements depicted in the Footage. Enquiries that Aerocare has made with Sydney Airport confirm that no such practices are in place.

We are instructed that split shifts are common in the aviation industry and were favoured with a 97% employee vote in the negotiation of the last Aerocare Enterprise Bargaining Agreement.

Aerocare provides a comfortable, air conditioned, catered lounge for use by its staff. Aerocare is not aware of its employees sleeping between shifts in the manner depicted and does not permit its employees to do so.
Baggage handling areas are accessed and used by employees from the many companies that service an airport and are patrolled by Australian Border Force and Sydney Airport Security.

The individual shown in the Footage is not an Aerocare employee and has been identified as an employee of an Aerocare competitor.

7.30 did not provide the Footage to Aerocare prior to broadcast of the Program which meant that Aerocare was given no opportunity to consider or comment upon the Footage.

The presentation of the Footage while making a baseless association with Aerocare, its employees and their working arrangements does not meet the essential requirement that the ABC be fair and honest in its dealings with Aerocare in circumstances where it is directly affected by the Story.

Allegations in relation to safety

The Story casts the Aerocare operation as a threat to passenger safety from its introduction by Ms Sales to the concluding comments by §47F(1). Despite that emphasis, the story presents no valid evidence of safety concerns, instead mischaracterising two events as safety issues.

The first event was in 2015 when a disabled lift was knocked on its side after colliding with an aerobridge whilst it was being moved. It was a vehicle accident caused by driver error with no suggestion that fatigue was a contributor. No aircraft was involved, there was no material damage to the aerobridge and it is dishonest for 7.30 to cite this, as an instance of “a serious accident” which could cause “harm and damage to airline (sic) or people travelling on that airline”.

The second event was an incident in November 2014. The Story gives only lip service to the authoritative and considered conclusion of the Australian Transport Safety Bureau (ATSB) that this was not a safety matter before deferring an unidentified person said to be an Aerocare worker to make the baseless and alarming assessment “They would have fallen out of the sky” and insinuating that fatigue was a factor.

Prior to broadcast (and without being provided an opportunity to review or respond to the events) Aerocare provided detailed information to 7.30 including advising that:

- Aerocare handles over 170,000 flight turns each year in complex airport environments.
- In 22 years and despite handling over a million flights, Aerocare has never been penalised for a safety related issue.
- In 2016 Aerocare passed all of more than 180 safety and security-related audits.
- Aerocare is the only Australian-owned handler registered to the top global standard – IATA Safety Audit for Ground Operations (ISAGO).

In the circumstances, it is clear that 7.30 has broadcast a misleading and alarmist picture of the safety of the Aerocare business.

Concern

For the reasons outlined above the Story does not meet the ABC commitment to integrity, responsibility and accuracy in its journalism.

Whether or not 7.30 was aware prior to broadcast of the misrepresentation of its source, §47F(1) and the dishonest characterisation of the Footage, it is now aware of these matters. 7.30 sidelined evidence provided by Aerocare and the ATSB to raise dramatic safety concerns that have no proper foundation.
In the interests of accuracy the ABC has committed to correcting errors and clarifying ambiguous or otherwise misleading information. Such a correction must be swift in order to reduce the harmful dissemination of these damaging errors.

Aerocare expects 7.30 to broadcast (and publish online) a correction to the following effect:

On Tuesday night we broadcast a story about the pay and conditions of workers for Airport services company Aerocare. The story featured an interview with a [47F(1)] who we said was an Aerocare employee speaking under risk of retribution. 7.30 accepts that [47F(1)] has not worked for Aerocare for nine months and is currently employed by a competitor.

The Story also featured footage of makeshift sleeping arrangements in Australian Airports. 7.30 acknowledges that there is nothing to link those sleeping arrangements with Aerocare workers.

We are aware that 7.30 continues to be engaged with Aerocare and its representatives in relation to this matter. We do not have any difficulties with those communications continuing.

We would however ask that you respond to this letter by 4pm on Tuesday 28 March 2017 confirming that the correction will be published.

Yours faithfully

Dear

Aerocare Pty Limited - 7.30 Program

We refer to our letter of 27 March 2017 (our first letter).

No response to Aerocare concerns

Our first letter raised the concerns of Aerocare arising from the story on 7.30 broadcast on 20 March 2017 (the Story). Aerocare requested the broadcast of a correction to meet the commitment that ABC has to accuracy and highlighted the need for the correction to be swift to reduce the harmful dissemination of the errors and misleading information in the Story.

Our first letter also outlined reasons why Aerocare, a party directly affected by the Story, considered the Story as failing to demonstrate the integrity, responsibility and accuracy required of the ABC.

We asked that 7.30 respond to our first letter by 4pm on Tuesday 28 March 2017.

We have had no response to our letter at all and there has been no correction to the Story. At the same time 7.30 has made it clear to Aerocare that it intends to broadcast a further story concerning the company (Further Story).

7.30 has contacted Aerocare on numerous occasions concerning the Further Story. It does so in a context where 7.30 has not broadcast an apology or responded to our first letter. The response of Aerocare to your ongoing engagement with it needs to be considered in that context. It is also in the context in which we are instructed to write this further letter.

New concern – The Brisbane event

Our first letter raised concerns about the serious mischaracterisation and dramatisation of two events – a disabled lift colliding with an aerobridge in 2015 (disabled lift incident) and an event in November 2014 involving a cargo door (cargo door incident).
Despite the disabled lift incident having no bearing on airline safety and the ATSB concluding that the cargo door incident was not a safety matter, 7.30 described the events (respectively) as "a serious accident... [potentially causing] harm and damage to airline (sic) or people travelling on that airline" and insinuating that the plane "would have fallen out of the sky".

After engaging with 7.30 Aerocare has been given notice by the journalist, James Thomas, of a new event being investigated by 7.30 – the premature closure of a cargo hold door on 23 November 2014 in Brisbane (the Brisbane event).

Aerocare is concerned that 7.30 may give baseless, damaging and alarmist treatment to the Brisbane event in an upcoming program, as it did with the cargo door incident and disabled lift incident.

Mr Thomas summarised the Brisbane event:

"Aerocare employees unknowingly locked a supervisor, \textsuperscript{47F}(1) into the cargo hold of an outward bound Virgin flight at Brisbane International during push back preparations."

Aerocare has communicated with 7.30 directly in relation to the Brisbane event and advised 7.30 that:

(a) Supervisor and Pit Crew Advanced team member for the Virgin flight in question, entered the hold of an airplane stationed at the gate to retrieve an item of cargo for offload at the direction of the Flight Captain. \textsuperscript{47F}(1) placed his clipboard and radio in the doorway and left the cargo netting undone to indicate his presence.

(b) An Aerocare employee \textsuperscript{47F}(1) closed the hold door.

(c) It is not possible to "lock" a person inside the cargo hold. \textsuperscript{47F}(1) went straight to the door and opened it using the controls which are inside the door.

(d) Upon exit, \textsuperscript{47F}(1) highlighted the error of closing the door despite the open cargo netting, and presence of \textsuperscript{47F}(1) radio and clipboard.

(e) As \textsuperscript{47F}(1) was concerned to ensure \textsuperscript{47F}(1) took the counselling seriously he escalated it to his manager, \textsuperscript{47F}(1) who also met with \textsuperscript{47F}(1)

(f) An Aerocare Safety Specialist assessed the report with an independent Operational Risk Classification of "Minor Severity" with an overall risk rating of "Very Low".

(g) Fatigue is not considered a contributing or cause or factor in the Brisbane event. \textsuperscript{47F}(1) had performed 29 hours of work that week with 21.5 hours between his previous shift, having finished at 10am the previous day and starting work at 7am on the day of the Brisbane event.

(h) The occurrence is not Australian Transport Safety Bureau (ATSB) or Civil Aviation Authority reportable. The ATSB has reviewed the incident and confirmed that "the ATSB considers the event not to be a reportable matter (ATSB emphasis)".

(i) The Brisbane event was included as a "Toolbox" Training Meeting agenda item for approximately 2 weeks.

(j) There has been no repeat of the Brisbane event or any similar incident in the interim.

(k) The Brisbane event is well documented:
A report was written and submitted with full details of the occurrence.

Supervisor and manager actions are recorded in the report.

Supervisor and manager discussions with employees employment history.

Aerocare has obtained a written statement from the employees.

The airline, Virgin Australia, were advised of the Brisbane event and agree that it is not ATSB reportable.

It follows from the matters outlined above that there was never any risk to Aerocare staff, the aircraft or passengers. The Brisbane event was appropriately dealt with.

In the context of the concerns in our first letter, Aerocare seeks the assurance of 7.30 that, if the Brisbane event is to be presented, it be in a way that is accurate, objective and avoids sensationalism.

Perth allegations

Mr Thomas has also advised Aerocare that 7.30 intends to broadcast allegations from a former employee in Perth (Perth allegations).

Aerocare bears no ill will, but has expressed to 7.30 its concerns with how the employee in the matter that Aerocare has raised. The matters that Aerocare has raised with 7.30 include:

(a) that was employed and paid as an Airline Service Trainee (AST) under the provisions of the Aerocare Collective Agreement 2008 for 71 shifts over a period of 17.4 weeks. He worked no more than 5 shifts in a week with an average shift of 4 hours. He worked only 1 “split shift”. Since leaving Aerocare has made two written applications for reemployment.

(b) that Aerocare takes employee injury seriously, including in relation to the two injuries raised by

(i) on 13 December 2010 an injury report prepared by supervisor comments prepared that day and manager notes from the following day show that was injured when he was hit in the face by a piece of cargo, sustaining a cut to his upper lip. He had one day off as a result of the injury and returned to work as rostered on 17 December 2010; and

(ii) injured his wrist while unloading a bag from an aircraft loaded by another ground handling organisation. report refers to the strain occurring while lifting a "small but heavy bag (most likely tools)". There is no record as to whether the bag was >20kg in which case the organisation loading the bag should have attached a "Heavy Tag" under the applicable guidelines. Contrary to claims as to the prevalence of wrist injuries, no other reports relating to wrist injuries in Perth were lodged during the term of employment. Indeed, no injury management programs or wrist injuries were recorded over financial year 2010/11.
(c) $47F(1)$ statements in relation to lightning and safety are unqualified, incorrect and out-of-date. At the time of $47F(1)$ employment Aerocare responded to lightning in accordance with its customer airline policies and based upon information provided by the Bureau of Meteorology representatives. Aerocare is now partnered with UBIMET Australia, a company specialising in professional advanced weather services, particularly via its UBIMET lightning detection system. This ensures that Aerocare has the best available information to inform its response to adverse weather conditions. Aerocare is recognised as a driver in developing and harmonising positive policy across airlines, other service providers and airports.

(d) $47F(1)$ makes other allegations that either strain credibility ("personally witnessed multiple crew asleep or falling asleep during work hours on almost every shift") or are made without precision or evidence (failure to supply personal protective equipment). He is also given to generalisations, referring to a single formal process in relation to bullying/harassment as evidencing "a culture of bullying and workplace harassment". There has only been one such process in the 25 year history of Aerocare. In that case the individual withdraw the complaint.

Aerocare expects that if it 7.30 intends to present the Perth allegations it will discharge its duty to do so in a way that meets the objective standard of factual accuracy.

This would require appropriate weight be given to $47F(1)$ limited expertise and understanding of the approach that Aerocare takes to lightning prone conditions – particularly given that his information is over five years old. On the other hand, 7.30 has been provided by Aerocare with a detailed and up-to-date account of its approach to lightning detection and response. Aerocare has also provided a detailed account of the two injuries sustained by $47F(1)$

Summary

Our first letter outlined concerns about the way the footage of makeshift bedding beside luggage carousels was presented, your reliance upon $47F(1)$ the treatment of the disabled lift incident and alarmist presentation of the Brisbane event. In this letter (and through your direct contact with Aerocare) 7.30 has full information about the Brisbane event and the Perth allegations. 7.30 has not advised of any other allegations or Footage to be aired in the Further Story.

In these circumstances a Further Story which amounts to an unwarranted attack on an Australian-owned baggage handling company with 2000 Australian employees with a best-in-class safety record over 25 years will amount to a failure to provide content which fulfills the functions of the ABC under the Australian Broadcasting Act 1983 to the required standard.

Request for response

Aerocare asks that you respond to the serious concerns raised in our first letter without further delay.

In doing so Aerocare also asks that 7.30 confirm its commitment to fair and honest dealing in any Further Story about Aerocare, including in relation to any presentation of the Brisbane event and/or Perth allegations.

Aerocare and its representatives continue to be engaged directly with 7.30 in relation to this matter and has no difficulty in those communications continuing. The level of comfort that Aerocare has in those dealings is likely to be informed by your response to our first letter and this letter. Aerocare expects that it will be informed of any allegations or Footage to be included in any Further Story with sufficient time to provide its considered response.
Aerocare reserves its rights in this matter.

Yours faithfully

Gender equality indicator 1: Gender composition of workforce

This indicator seeks information about the gender composition of relevant employers in a standardised format, to enable the aggregation of data across and within industries. The aggregated data in your workplace profile assists relevant employers in understanding the characteristics of their workforce, including in relation to occupational segregation, the position of women and men in management within their industry or sector, and patterns of potentially insecure employment.

1.15 Should you wish to provide additional information on any of your responses under gender equality indicator 1, please do so below:

Gender equality indicator 2: Gender composition of governing bodies

Gender composition of governing bodies is an indicator of gender equality at the highest level of organisational leadership and decision-making. This gender equality indicator seeks information on the representation of women and men on governing bodies.

The term “governing body” in relation to a relevant employer is broad and depends on the nature of your organisation. It can mean the board of directors, trustees, committees of management, council or other governing authority of the employer.

2. Your organisation, or organisations you are reporting on, will have a governing body/board as defined in the Workplace Gender Equality Act 2012 (Act). (In the Act, a governing body is defined as “the board of directors, trustees, committees of management, council or other governing authority of the employer”.) For the purposes of reporting under the Act, this question relates to the ultimate or highest governing body for your organisation. NB: if your governing body/board is located overseas, it still needs to be included.

- 0 For private or publicly listed companies, you will have one or more directors or a board of directors.
- 0 For trusts, the trustee is the governing body/board.
- 0 For partnerships, the governing body/board is likely to comprise all or some (if elected) partners.
- 0 For organisations whose governing body/board is the same as their parent entity’s governing body/board, it is still deemed to have a governing body/board.
- 0 For religious structures, you may have a canonical advisor, bishop or archbishop.
- 0 For other structures that do not fall into any of the above categories, your committee of management would be considered your governing body/board.

2.1 Please complete the table below, ensuring data entered is based on the instructions in each column header. For each organisation, enter the number of women and men on that governing body/board (not percentage). If a target has been set to increase the representation of women on any of the governing bodies listed, please indicate the % target and the year it is to be reached.

If your organisation’s governing body/board is the same as your parent entity’s governing body/board, you will need to enter your organisation’s name but the details of your parent entity’s governing body/board in the table below.
Organisation Name

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Organisation Name</th>
<th>Gender and NUMBER of chairperson/s (NOT percentage)</th>
<th>Gender and NUMBER of other governing body/board members (NOT percentage)</th>
<th>% target for representation of women on each governing body/board (enter 0 if no target has been set, or enter a % between 1-100)</th>

2.2

If a target relating to the representation of women has not been set for any of the governing bodies listed above, you may specify why below:

- Governing body/board has gender balance (e.g. 40% women/40% men/20% either)
- Currently under development
- Insufficient human resources staff
- Don't have expertise
- Do not have control over governing body/board appointments (provide details why):
  - Board is appointed by shareholders
  - Not a priority
  - Other (provide details):

Please enter the total number of female and male equity partners (excluding the managing partner) in the following table against the relevant WGEA standardised manager definitions. Non-equity (salaried) partners need to be included in your workplace profile.

Details of your managing partner should be included separately in the CEO row of your workplace profile.

NB: Please ensure that the composition of your governing body/board (which may include all or some of your equity partners below) is also entered in question 2.1.

Dear Minister

Following my conversation with [redacted] in your office please see below an update provided by Minister Cash’s department for your information:

Latest developments
- The proposed agreement put forward by Aerocare was voted up by a majority of employees.
- 88% of employees covered by the agreement voted in the ballot with 83% of those voting Yes.
- The company issued a statement on its website saying “the new agreement include increased pay rates across the board of at least five per cent, an increase in minimum shift length from three hours to four hours, significant long service recognition, and broadening of eligibility for specialist duties payments.”
- The TWU and ASU have publicly stated that it will challenge the approval of the agreement when it comes before the Fair Work Commission. The TWU issued a media release yesterday stating, “This vote was neither open nor transparent and we have serious concerns as to whether it was a secret ballot. Low paid staff were forced to vote over Easter weekend with minimal notice.” The ASU is reported as saying, “casuals were not allowed to vote on the new agreement, even though they were believed to comprise about half the workforce. We maintain our position that it doesn’t meet the BOOT and we will no doubt challenge it.”
- The agreement will be lodged with the Fair Work Commission in the coming week.
- The ABC has published a story earlier today that claims a worker was locked in an aircraft cargo hold and it was never reported. We understand the claims by former employees around safety will be part of a 7:30 piece to air this evening. The company is preparing a response to this story and will provide the Department with it in due course.

Background
- Aerocare Flight Support Pty Ltd (Aerocare) provides baggage handling, aircraft loading, towing and other aviation services for Australian and international airlines. Aerocare has operated for more than 20 years providing ground support services to airlines at major city and regional airports across Australia.
- Aerocare commenced bargaining in 2016 to replace the Aero-Care Collective Agreement 2012 (2012 Agreement). the key sticking points in the negotiations for the TWU and ASU were hours of work and roster arrangements.
- The 2012 Agreement was approved with undertakings by Vice President Graeme Watson of the Fair Work Commission on 12 February 2013. The approval of the 2012 Agreement was opposed by the TWU and the ASU claiming the roster arrangements did not pass the better-off overall test (BOOT).
- The unions’ main concern was that the minimum engagement period of three hours under the 2012 Agreement compared to the minimum four hours under the Operations Ground Staff Award 2013 was a disadvantage. Vice President Watson agreed with that submission, however in his approval of the 2012 Agreement he noted, [26] I have weighed the respective advantages and disadvantages under the Agreement compared to the Award. In my view the benefits of the Agreement are substantial. I have also considered the detailed evidence and calculations provided in the proceedings which assists in assessing the extent of the benefits and the disadvantages. I note that in relation to minimum shift lengths the basis of these calculations adopt the unions’ proposals regarding financial impact. Having regard to all of the circumstances I am satisfied that each Award covered employee and each prospective Award covered employee would be better off overall if the agreement applied than if the Award applied. In my view the Agreement satisfies the BOGT.

- On 20 March 2017, the ABC 7:30 program reported that workers were working ‘split-shifts’ and as a result sleeping at airport terminals in makeshift beds. Footage obtained by the TWU and provided to the ABC showed bed rolls behind a baggage carousel. The report also featured a person claiming he was a current employee and feared for his job.

- Aerocare Chief Executive Glenn Rutherford made the following statement to the ABC on 20 March 2017:
  Aerocare is deeply concerned by any allegations of system deficiency and will further investigate any claims thoroughly. That said, we want to ensure it is on record that in 22 years, and despite handling over a million flights, Aerocare has never been penalised for a safety related issue. Aerocare has and will always be fully compliant with laws and regulations and as part of that the company is again committed to providing its employees with significant wage increases as part of the current round of wage negotiations.

- The Sydney Morning Herald reported on 21 March 2017 alleging that workers were subject to ‘squalid third world conditions’ while they wait for their next shift.

- The TWU alleges that under the ‘split-shift’ arrangement workers are spending more than 14 hours per day at the airport and in some cases workers can be required to work more than one shift in a single day. The TWU claimed the split shifts were threatening the safety of passengers.

- A worker is quoted in the article that sometimes there was a six-hour wait between shifts and workers “made little nests with airline blankets and waited”, because it wasn’t worth going home.

- On 21 March 2017, Aerocare issued a further statement in relation to the allegations made on in the 7:30 report:

  The ABC 7.30 story prominently featured an interview with a who was described as an Aerocare employee and spoke about fearing that he would lose his job. In fact left Aerocare nine month ago, partway through training. He was a trainee and employee over a two month period ending June 2016 during which he undertook only 28 shifts that each averaged approximately 7 hours in duration with regular rest breaks and with no split shifts. His employment was exclusively in the catering truck segment of the business, which had no overlap with or access to the baggage claim areas that were the subject of his complaints. He left the company of his own volition and is now employed by a competitor. The opportunity to work two shifts in a day is offered to employees where the company does not have the contract coverage to provide a longer continuous shift. This was included in the last EBA that was approved by 97% of our workforce. Such shifts are entirely at the employees’ option.

- On 30 March 2017, the Minister was asked a question and two supplementary questions by Senator Gallacher (SA) about the Aerocare conditions (attached Hansard excerpt refers).

- On 4 April 2017, the company issued a further statement stating:

  Aerocare, alongside Australian airport authorities, today confirmed that claims of employee sleeping “comps” at its airport facilities were totally without foundation. The Company provided the results of an extensive investigation into recent disturbing media footage of improvised sleeping arrangements, allegedly within one of its airport areas, having worked in parallel with Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane and Perth airports and the Australian Border Force to conduct the investigation. All parties confirm that after careful physical inspection and review of surveillance footage and digital records they have found nothing to substantiate the existence of “comps” where people are sleeping on site or any similar practices at any of these locations.

- On 5 April 2017, the ABC issued the following correction and clarification about its 20 March 2017 report:

  On 20 March 2017, 7.30 broadcast a story concerning alleged poor working conditions at Aerocare. A worker interviewed for the story has informed 7.30, and Aerocare has confirmed that had not had a shift with the company for nine months prior to his interview for this program and had done less than two months work for the company. He maintains he was, none the less, still on the books and showed 7.30 a current Aerocare security card. The company maintains, therefore, that it was unreasonable to suggest he was risking his job. 7.30 also advises it has confirmed that a worker shown sleeping worker in a luggage container was not an employee of Aerocare.
On 14 April 2017 the access period for consideration of the proposed agreement ended. The ASU attempted to bring urgent good faith bargaining orders against Aerocare for not provided information relevant to the bargaining process.

The ASU and TWU ran ‘Vote No’ campaigns. The Department understands that the unions have very low membership at Aerocare and has limited ability to exert any industrial pressure on the company at the bargaining table or through industrial action. They have used the media as a means of exerting pressure.

The ballot on the proposed agreement opened on 15 April 2017 and closed 18 April 2017.

On 19 April 2017, the company declared that a majority of employees had endorsed the agreement.

Media statements by both the ASU and TWU indicate that they will challenge the approval of the agreement before FWC.

The company anticipates that it will lodge the agreement with FWC in the coming week.

On 20 April 2017, the ABC reported that former employees had come forward to claim that safety incidents had not been reported and that Aerocare had a poor safety record.

Kind regards

Aerocare: Aviation Safety Issues

KEY ISSUES/QUESTION

- Allegations made by Aerocare employees on ABC 7.30 Report programs that current terms and conditions of employment are impacting on aviation safety at Australian airports.

GOVERNMENT POSITION

- I am aware of the most recent concerns raised in relation to operations by Aerocare, an Australian ground handling company working for many of the major airlines at our major airports.

- In relation to aviation safety, airline operations, including the provision of ground handling services, are subject to regular auditing by the Civil Aviation Safety Authority (CASA), the aviation safety regulator.

- CASA has confirmed that the allegations raised on the 7.30 Program on 20 April 2017, including the alleged falsification of documentation, are concerning and CASA will be investigating these allegations.

- Depending on the outcome of these investigations, appropriate safety and other actions will be put in place noting that CASA holds airline certificate holders responsible for the operations of their subcontractors.

OCCUPATIONAL HEALTH AND SAFETY AND INDUSTRIAL MATTERS (IF RAISED)

- The Occupational Health and Safety (OH&S) issues raised in these programs are matters for the respective state OH&S oversight agencies.
BACKGROUND

On 20 March 2017, the ABC 7.30 television program ran a story based on interviews with several Aerocare workers and the Transport Workers Union which raised safety concerns caused by the terms and conditions of employment used by Aerocare.

The ABC program heavily focussed on the terms and conditions of Aerocare workers and linked this with safety concerns caused by fatigue given some part-time staff were working several shifts and hence having to sleep at the airport in between shifts in makeshift, poor conditions.

Senior management from Aerocare, including CEO Glen Rutherford met with Minister Chester after the first report was aired, to respond to the claims made on the 7:30 program. They confirmed their commitment to providing safe services at our airports.

On 20 April 2017 the program aired further interviews with former Aerocare employees over the locking in of a baggage handling supervisor at Brisbane Airport, the dehydration of an employee and the falsification of reports.

Aerocare, an Australian-owned company, provides contracted ground handling services at around 35 of Australia and New Zealand’s major airports for several Air Operator’s Certificate (AOC) holders including Qantas, Jetstar, Virgin, Tiger and Singapore Airlines. The company has responded to the program noting that it turns around over 170,000 flights per year and has an IATA accredited safety rating for ground services.

Aerocare has operated for 22 years and has not had any safety notices issued against them.

Aviation Safety Regulation

Part of the regulatory compliance obligations of the AOC holder require the holder to have comprehensive operating procedures in place with which the ground services organisation must comply. The airlines are also required to have in place an effective audit regime, as part of their safety management systems, to ensure the operations of the ground services organisation are in compliance with the airline’s stipulated procedures.

CASA oversees the airlines that contract Aerocare to perform services in accordance with the airlines’ operating procedures. CASA routinely conducts surveillance of the airline operations, including those services that Aerocare performs for the airline.

In particular, CASA will determine, through regular surveillance activity, the maturity of the airline to appropriately oversight and manage third-party contractors such as Aerocare. Any CASA audit findings are issued to the airline and if these relate to the services provided by the ground service organisation, the airline is required to ensure appropriate remedial action is taken by the third party. CASA in turn assesses the efficacy of the remedial action.

Aviation Safety Incidents

The 20 March 2017 program also raised two alleged safety incidents involving Aerocare – a cargo door that was not properly shut before pushback at Brisbane Airport on 28 November 2014 and the top of a disabled persons lift being towed hitting an aerobridge in 2015.

On 1 December 2014, the ATSB was notified of an event involving a Tigerair A320 aircraft during push back—as opposed to take-off as reported by 7.30—while a cargo door was open at Brisbane airport.

Before push back, both pilots viewed the door page as closed and ground crew confirmed ground checks were completed.

The aircraft pushed back and the flight crew were then made aware via an automatic alert that the door was not fully closed. At the completion of the push back, the pilots queried the door with the ground crew and the cargo door was secured.

The flight crew are not made aware of the extent to which the door isn’t shut, just that it’s not closed and locked and therefore not in a safe condition for take-off.

The airline notified the ATSB of this event on 1 December 2014, which is within the timeframe required for reporting this type of event.

Based on the notification, the ATSB assessed that the system worked as designed to detect the anomaly and the event was not a transport safety matter. The ATSB, therefore, did not investigate the event.

In relation to the 2015 disabled persons lift incident, Aerocare has stated this was investigated by the company and the airline incident auditors.

The incident involved a lift being towed between airport gates in preparation for a later flight and, in contravention of operating procedures, the tow driver took a “short-cut” and the top of the lift hit the aerobridge. The incident was reported to CASA and the airport.

The incident auditors did not find any systemic evidence of deficient procedures or that training or fatigue were contributing factors. The incident led to the employee involved being provided with coaching to improve future performance.

On 20 April 2017 the 7.30 Report program aired further interviews with former Aerocare employees over the alleged “locking in” of a baggage handling supervisor in the hold of an aircraft at Brisbane Airport, the dehydration of an employee and the falsification of reports.

Aerocare has responded to both of the initial allegations, including pointing out that the ATSB specifically confirmed that the allegedly locking in of the baggage handling supervisor was not a reportable event (noting that Aerocare has indicated that the supervisor in fact opened the door from the inside and exited the plane).
The most serious allegation from the program was the alleged falsification of baggage reporting, including weight measurement, and CASA has indicated it will be investigating these allegations.

Aviation Security

While no security issues were raised in these ABC programs, the Office of Transport Security will, as part of its regulatory regime, examine any issues arising out of these programs if there are any aviation security concerns.

Industrial Relations

Aerocare has indicated it has received overwhelming support from employees for the recently negotiated enterprise bargaining agreement which includes a pay increase of at least 5% and to increase minimum shift duration.

The Transport Workers Union (TWU) has indicated that Aerocare's shorter shifts and part-time hiring policy at airports is consistent with the "Americanisation" of work practices in Australia. In its most recent media release on 21 April 2017, the TWU has claimed that "the system is broken" and "requires an industry-wide award that protects wages and conditions, gives workers rights and protections and ensures high training, safety and security standards."

DC, updated talking points on Aerocare for your reference. CASA will be investigating allegations around falsification of documents and putting out a short media statement to this effect. The TPs below refer. We are sharing this with the Cash office as well.

- CASA has confirmed that the allegations raised on the 7.30 Program on 20 April 2017, including the alleged falsification of documentation, are concerning and CASA will be investigating these allegations.
- Depending on the outcome of these investigations, appropriate safety and other actions will be put in place noting that CASA holds airline certificate holders responsible for the operations of their subcontractors.

Dear Ministers,

I am making contact given your interest in our operations, and unfounded and misleading claims that have been made in two recent stories on ABC’s 7.30 program.

As an initial issue, Aerocare is a business with a long and established track record over a 25 year period and has never previously faced any adverse media reports or regulatory penalties. In relation to our operational and compliance performance, we would draw the following facts to your attention:

- The company has an industry-leading safety record;
- Aerocare’s Lost Time Frequency Injury Rate is less than one-third the industry average using Safe Work Australia’s own definition and benchmarks;
- The Company has never been penalised for a single safety or workplace injury issue across its 25 year history of handling over one million flights;
- Last year alone, the Company was subjected to over 180 audits by regulators, customers and airports and there is a similar level of scrutiny every year;
- Aerocare is frequently awarded for its safety performance and is the only Australian-owned ground handler with the top global safety accreditation, ISAGO;
- We pay above award rates and conditions;
- 83% of our workforce have just voted to approve the latest EBA which delivers increased pay and improved conditions;
- Previous EBAs were all similarly approved with very strong votes and all were explicitly ratified by the Fair Work Commission as offering better-than-award conditions;
- Aerocare is increasing wages and growing its workforce while global competitors are cutting back and looking to reduce pay rates.

In our view, the recent 7.30 stories were motivated and specifically-timed attempts by the Transport Workers Union (TWU) to negatively influence the outcome of the latest Aerocare enterprise bargaining agreement. Three weeks ago, and a full month after the initial 7.30 story, Aerocare’s new enterprise agreement was overwhelming approved by Aerocare’s workforce, with a strong 83% vote in favour of the new compact which will deliver pay increases across the board. This vote is clearly a strong endorsement of Aerocare’s operations by its employees.

Safety • Efficiency • Integrity
Disappointingly, the 7.30 Report stories were marred by false, misconceived and malicious accusations, brought forward by anonymous sources or disgruntled former employees, most of which now work for our foreign commercial competitors. Significantly, both of the independent experts and a number of other sources depicted in the stories have subsequently expressed concern directly to Aerocare about the way their views were presented in that they were misled or that the data and scenarios put to them by the reporter did not match the scenarios or facts then outlined in the story. One of the more prominently featured former employees has also stated in writing that 7.30 itself falsified flight file documents when it could not find any evidence for one of the core accusations aired.

We note that the ABC’s own independent internal review has found that 7.30’s first story in relation to our company breached the ABC editorial standards for accuracy. We believe the same conclusion is likely to be reached for the review that is ongoing into the second story.

The deeply held concerns that Aerocare has in relation to the 7.30 stories have also been notified to the Australian Communications and Media Authority (ACMA). Aerocare has asked the ACMA to conduct an Investigation of its complaint under s150 of the Broadcasting Services Act 1992.

Importantly, we have been in regular dialogue with all Federal and State regulators and safety agencies, our airline customers, and the airports themselves to offer “open book” access should they have any concerns. We are encouraged by their ongoing support, their confidence in our operations and our trained workforce, and our strong focus on workplace safety. Whilst many of these entities naturally had questions in the wake of the two 7.30 stories, they have all subsequently been provided with detailed responses and facts and none have articulated to Aerocare any extant concerns. Indeed, we have since commenced or been awarded a number of new contracts.

As regards the motivation of the TWU, and as a former TWU delegate myself, I would like to point out my disappointment that the union has never made any contact with Aerocare about the allegations which it is circulating. This is confusing given that the TWU claims to represent the best interests of its members employed in the industry and yet it does not engage with the company on any level to identify any work health and safety concerns or seek to work collaboratively to assess and address them. It is also disappointing that the TWU has publicly criticised Aerocare for certain features of our enterprise agreements – e.g. offering split shifts at the employee’s option – when they themselves have ratified the same features of the agreements of our foreign-owned competitors.

Should you have any questions around Aerocare’s operations, and more specifically around the misleading and false allegations that were raised in the 7.30 stories, please don’t hesitate to contact me directly.

I have attached the five press releases that we have issued on this matter for your convenience, the detail of which I would be very happy to walk you through in person. I think it is important that you understand the facts before you draw any conclusions from the 7.30 stories and associated TWU positioning.

We are very appreciative of the wide level of support that has been expressed by the aviation industry over the last few weeks and we intend to continue to provide industry-leading levels of safety and service as we focus on growing our business in Australia.

Thank you for your interest in this matter.

Yours sincerely,

ABC 7.30 REPORTS ALLEGATIONS AND PASSES OVER THE FACTS IN AEROCARE STORY

The story about Aerocare in the 7.30 Report of 20 April amounted to a second unwarranted attack upon Aerocare’s operations and record.

The story reflected misleading allegations made by the Transport Workers Union during a multi-week campaign, and are timed to attempt to influence the negotiation and development of the latest Aerocare Enterprise Bargaining Agreement.

In the face of this campaign, Aerocare employees voted this week in a landslide to adopt the latest EBA – an endorsement of Aerocare employee and workplace conditions from those who are in the best place to judge.

The 7.30 Report program was underpinned by the claims of two former Aerocare employees. Their accusations were baseless, misconceived and/or demonstrably false.

Aerocare provided extensive factual material and context to the 7.30 Report in response to these allegations. This was all but passed over in the uncritical airing of claims by a handful of individuals who are no longer part of the business.

CARGO DOOR CLOSURE

For example, 7.30 showed a former Aerocare worker claiming that his baggage handling supervisor was accidentally “locked” in the cargo hold of a plane “about to take off” from Brisbane Airport. As the ABC was made aware weeks ago with copies of the extensive incident reports and the supervisors’ own detailed statement, the supervisor was in fact not locked in the hold or in any way desperate. He opened a prematurely-closed door from the inside and exited the plane.

The incident occurred when the plane was being loaded. The plane was not about to take off and could not have taken off without clearance from the supervisor himself. The relevant regulator, the Australian Transport Safety Bureau, has specifically confirmed that the event was not reportable but, despite being aware of this key fact, the ABC has chosen to misleadingly portray this as a safety issue and a failure in incident reporting.

ALLEGED DEHYDRATION INCIDENT

The ABC also reported on an incident involving a former employee, S.47F(1) who claimed he had to leave a shift on 2 December 2014 because of severe dehydration.

At no time did S.47F(1) or anyone else report this incident or any associated issues to Aerocare. There is no record of S.47F(1) reporting this alleged incident as a workplace injury to anyone or at any time.
When this allegation was first put to Aerocare last week, investigations identified that s.47F(1) was heavily involved in a State Emergency Service operation in the days leading up to the 2 December and, on the day, it was confirmed that he worked for less than two hours before leaving his shift with an infection.

He returned to work in an unrestricted capacity and reporting no issues only 36 hours after leaving his prior shift. To attribute severe dehydration to less than two hours work is implausible. These facts, and others, were put to 7.30 but ignored.

Aerocare has investigated these and other claims that the ABC has put to it and in every instance provided comprehensive facts and rebuttals. 7.30 chose to report sensationalist allegations while ignoring or giving lip service to the truth and has failed in its commitment to fair and accurate reporting.

Aerocare Chief Executive Mr Rutherford said: “I have had strong feedback from a huge number of employees stating that they resent the TWU’s concerted campaign to undermine our company. Aerocare goes to extraordinary lengths to engage with, look after and reward our employees, and senior management have direct contact with our front-line workers and conduct monthly staff surveys for any feedback.

Aerocare has made significant investment in rostering practices and technology to maximise roster likability and minimise fatigue, as well as allowing flexibility for individuals. Any notion that Aerocare doesn’t care about people is ludicrous. Our employee ballot overwhelmingly supported the latest EBA and obviously provides the best possible evidence as to how Aerocare’s entire labour force views wage and overall employment conditions.

As regards the ABC, I find it hard to believe that a program and a broadcaster which commits to independence and integrity has run a story riddled with errors and statements from people who are disgruntled ex-employees of Aerocare in the context of a focussed campaign by the TWU.

The true story of Aerocare is one of a successful Australian employer with an industry-leading safety record, not the misleading claims of ex-employees now working for competitors or those seeking to undermine the company.”

AEROCARE REJECTS CLAIMS IN ABC STORY

Aerocare rejects the allegations published by the ABC on its website today.

Aerocare takes employee concerns and workplace conditions seriously. The allegations are sensational and inaccurate and ignore the factual material which Aerocare has provided to the ABC.

With regard to the specific allegations, Aerocare provides the following information.

CARGO HOLD
Allegation
A former Aerocare worker inaccurately told 7.30 that a baggage handling supervisor was accidentally "locked" in the cargo hold of a plane about to take off from Brisbane airport, but that the incident was never reported to safety authorities.
Fact
As the ABC is aware, the supervisor was not locked in the hold. He opened the door from the inside and exited the plane. It is not possible to lock someone in the cargo hold.

The incident occurred when the plane was being loaded. It was not about to take off and could not have taken off without clearance from the supervisor himself. Importantly the ABC is fully aware that the regulator, the Australian Transport Safety Bureau, has confirmed that the incident was not reportable but it seems this key fact has been misleadingly omitted.

WASTE AND WATER
Allegation
A former employee claimed Aerocare put passenger health at risk by using the same staff member to clear toilet waste and then, just hours later, refill drinking water on plane. This is an intentionally misleading and mischievous statement.
Fact
Aerocare typically rosters separate people for waste and water services. Contrary to the intentionally disturbing way that the practice is presented it is also acceptable practice for waste and water services to be delivered by the same employee, provided adequate hygiene practices are followed, as trained by Aerocare and mandated by customers.

SAFETY
Aerocare takes the safety of its workers seriously and has a strong audited safety record in all of its operations without a single penalty over 25 years. It is frequently awarded for its safety performance and is the only Australian-owned ground handler with the top global safety accreditation, ISAGO.
Aerocare’s Lost Time Frequency Injury Rate is less than one third the industry average: i.e. staff are three times more likely to be injured working for a competitor.

EBA

Most importantly, Aerocare’s staff this week voted overwhelmingly in favour of a new Enterprise Bargaining Agreement. There was a high participation rate of 88 per cent, with a resounding 83 per cent vote in favour of a new four-year agreement. This will deliver pay rises and additional new benefits across the board.

The vote was conducted in an appropriate and auditable manner, which was previously specifically approved by the Fair Work Commission.

AEROCARE PROVIDES UPDATE ON CURRENT ISSUES

As part of a calculated campaign by the Transport Workers Union (“TWU”) initiated in the lead-up to an employee vote to adopt a new Enterprise Bargaining Agreement (“EBA”), Aerocare has been questioned by the ABC on the Company’s injury performance in recent years.

Aerocare confirms that it has one of the lowest, if not the lowest, injury frequency and severity in the industry. Aerocare employees are, on average, over three times less likely to lose time to injury than peers employed elsewhere in the sector under Safe Work Australia’s own definition.

Although not typically published, for the sake of transparency, Aerocare’s provides below its audited workcover injury data as proof of its excellent track record.

SAFETY | EFFICIENCY | INTEGRITY
In 25 years of handling more than a million flights, the Company has never had a penalty imposed on it by a workcover entity, underscoring that there is no basis for suggesting that the culture and work practices of the Aerocare are unsafe.

To the contrary, the business is regularly audited and awarded on its achievements and record. Aerocare’s overall lost-time injury frequency rate (using Safe Work Australia’s definition) for the current financial year is <1 incident per million hours worked, which is an outstanding result, particularly in a complex industrial environment like an airport where incidents can and do happen.

As regards Sydney International, which has been the focus of much attention, the Company affirms an overall low injury rate recorded for Aerocare employees, with zero major injuries where lost-time was above 7 days recorded for that port in the current financial year, and only four in total since January 2015.

During this period a total of over 650 employees were part of the overall Sydney International workforce and collectively serviced over 12,000 flights. Reflective of this strong performance, the Company’s NSW workcover insurance premium is in line with the national average rate.

CLAIMS OF SLEEPING “CAMPS” AT AIRPORTS DEBUNKED

On Monday 3rd April, Australian airport authorities, alongside Aerocare, confirmed that claims of employee sleeping “camps” at airport facilities were totally without foundation.

The Company provided the results of an extensive investigation into recent disturbing media footage of improvised sleeping arrangements, allegedly within one of its airport areas, having worked in parallel with Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane and Perth airports to conduct the investigation.

Aerocare Chief Executive Glenn Rutherford said: “All parties confirmed explicitly to Aerocare that after careful inspection and review of footage and records nothing was found to substantiate the existence of “camps” where people are sleeping on site or any similar practices at any of these locations.

Aerocare and Sydney Airport have also reviewed all their records over the last three years and were only able to uncover a single instance, in April 2016, of personal belongings being left against policy in an unauthorised area of the airport.”

ABC ACKNOWLEDGES FUNDAMENTAL ERRORS IN STORY

The ABC has clarified several errors in the story broadcast on the 7.30 on 20 March 2017, which contained misleading and sensationalist reporting about working conditions at Aerocare. An acknowledgement was posted on the ABC’s website on 5 April 2017 (http://www.abc.net.au/news/2017-04-05/aerocare-cty-ltd/8419082).

The ABC admitted that a key person who appeared on 7.30 had misrepresented himself as an Aerocare employee.

The program introduced as a whistle-blower who was “risking his job to speak out publically.”
In fact, S.47F(1) only worked at Aerocare for two months in the first half of 2016 and has since been employed by an Aerocare competitor.

He was a trainee in the catering truck segment of the business, which has no involvement with the baggage areas that he spoke about whilst 7.30 concurrently showed images of purported employee sleeping “camps,” which have themselves been thoroughly disproven after a full investigation involving Australian airport authorities.

The ABC correction also concedes that 7.30 Report misrepresented footage as showing an Aerocare worker sleeping in a luggage container. The ABC now confirms that the person shown was not an employee of Aerocare.

When combined with the results of the parallel investigations that have rejected the “camp” allegations, confirmations that the safety incidents raised on the program were not considered risks by the regulator mean the errors conceded by 7.30 leave the entire story with no credibility.

Subsequent to the initial episode the ABC has continued to put various unfounded and unsubstantiated allegations to Aerocare based upon hearsay of former employees and a TWU delegate. Aerocare has provided strong rebuttal and detailed and factual responses to all claims, including unsubstantiated generalized attacks on Aerocare’s document management procedures and audit processes.

Aerocare reaffirms that its practices are regularly audited by regulators and customers and strongly refutes any claims that its systems and processes are in any way deficient, as evidenced by the Company’s outstanding 25 year track record.

INTENTIONALLY MISLEADING STATEMENTS BY TWU DURING EBA NEGOTIATIONS

Aerocare has called out the TWU for making misleading statements during Enterprise Bargaining Agreement negotiations.

Employees working more than one shift in a day (“split shifts”) occurs regularly in the aviation industry in Australia, and elsewhere in the world, given that rosters are determined by fluctuating flight schedules and aircraft turn-around times.

Many Aerocare competitors and other industry participants allow for and engage in split shifts in their rostering. Split-shifting is also common in the hospitality and transport industries.

At Aerocare, split shifts are only provided at the employee’s option and have been supported by 97% of the company’s employees in the last EBA.

Aerocare Chief Executive, Glenn Rutherford said the TWU was involved in a calculated campaign with regard to the availability of split shifts.

As part of that campaign the TWU has claimed that Aerocare is the “only aviation company whose agreement allows for split shifts, which is specifically excluded under the award.”
Mr Rutherford said: "This is a dishonest statement. The TWU itself has endorsed enterprise agreements that include split shifts for its competitors, including Skystar, which is a subsidiary of UK giant Menzies Aviation."

ENTERPRISE BARGAINING BALLOT

The key employee ballot to approve the latest EBA, which includes a four-hour minimum shift, will commence this Saturday and will obviously provide the best possible proof as to how Aerocare's entire labour force views wage and overall employment conditions.

Management are confident of strong support, as with the last vote, and note that they are increasing wage conditions and other benefits at a time that competitors are publicly confirming an intention to cut back.

AEROCARE REJECTS CLAIMS OF SLEEPING "CAMPS" AT AIRPORTS AND HIGHLIGHTS EXCELLENT SAFETY CREDENTIALS

Aerocare, alongside Australian airport authorities, today confirmed that claims of employee sleeping "camps" at its airport facilities were totally without foundation.

The Company provided the results of an extensive investigation into recent disturbing media footage of improvised sleeping arrangements, allegedly within one of its airport areas, having worked in parallel with Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane and Perth airports and the Australian Border Force to conduct the investigation.

All parties confirm that after careful physical inspection and review of surveillance footage and digital records they have found nothing to substantiate the existence of "camps" where people are sleeping on site or any similar practices at any of these locations.

Aerocare and Sydney Airport have also reviewed all their records over the last three years and were only able to uncover a single instance, in April 2016, of personal belongings being left against policy in an unauthorised area of the airport.

Records show that an Aerocare employee, who remains with the business, had been identified as storing personal belongings inappropriately and was officially cautioned for the infraction. Items belonging to other parties were also found at that time. The area was cleared and there is no other evidence of such conduct over that three year period.

Aerocare’s Chief Executive, Glenn Rutherford, said: “These claims of our employees sleeping rough at Sydney Airport never made sense. Airport security and Border Force regularly patrol all of our areas and we would act immediately if any evidence of unsanctioned behaviour was discovered.”

“We provide heated, air-conditioned and furnished facilities at each of our ports for employee rest breaks and our our first priority has been, and will always be, an absolute commitment to ensuring that all employees are fully trained, well informed and given the best possible safety conditions in what is a complex and potentially hazardous working environment.”

SAFETY RECORD

Aerocare takes the safety of its workers seriously and has a strong safety record in all of its operations.

Aerocare’s Lost Time Frequency Injury Rate is less than one third the industry average (2.7 events per million hours versus benchmark of 9.1 events) – in other words, on average, you are three times more likely to be injured working for one of Aerocare’s competitors.
Mr Rutherford said: "While ground handling is a complex industrial service and incidents can and do happen, Aerocare has operated for 25 years and handled over 1,000,000 flights without a single safety or workcover-related penalty. Last year alone, we passed over 180 audits performed by the regulators, customers, and airports. There is a similar level of scrutiny every year."

A detailed review of incident reports over a two year period demonstrated that fatigue or fatigue-related terms are not cited as a factor in almost any (<0.2%) report. Reports are completed by employees themselves in a culture of regular, open and honest reporting that is commended by customers.

The leading specialist aviation insurance broker, Aerosure, has confirmed that Aerocare's outstanding safety track record has meant that Aerocare remains one of the most "sought out" accounts by insurers in its sector on a global basis with its premiums reflective of that superior status.

Aerocare's workers' compensation insurance premium is 29% less than the industry average, reflective of a strong track record and safety management system.

SAFETY ISSUES

A number of incidents were referred to in a recent ABC 7.30 Report relating to a disabled lift being damaged, and an open cargo door. Aerocare and the relevant authorities have confirmed the two incidents were not safety events.

The 7.30 Report has since sought more information of two additional incidents, one involving a premature closing of a cargo door and another an adverse weather event. Both of the incidents were investigated by the regulator – the ATSB.

In the first case, a cargo door prematurely closed and was then immediately re-opened by the employee inside using internal controls. The plane was stationary, the aircraft door was still open and, as with any opening or closing of a passenger door, the ATSB confirmed there was never any need for an associated safety review.

With regard to the adverse weather (lightning) event that saw two employees injured, after detailed review, the ATSB's report did not find any deficiency in Aerocare procedures and instead highlighted Aerocare's proactive actions.

Mr Rutherford said: "These few well documented and handled incidents should be considered in the context of over 170,000 flights being handled this year by over 3,000 employees across the Aerocare system. We are committed to continuing to provide the travelling public with efficient baggage handling and turnaround of planes in a safe workplace environment.

While we treat any of the concerns of our employees or former employees seriously we are concerned by significant factual inaccuracies in the 7.30 Report story. In particular claims made by a person who said he was an employee but is in fact employed by a competitor, and another who provided a statement based upon baseless rumours, misunderstandings and inaccuracies."

Aerocare has also provided the 7.30 Report with information around two other incidents which appear to have been sensationalised. The first involves an employee who suffered a major but rare workplace accident at Sydney Airport when his toe was crushed. The incident was investigated by Safework NSW, with the Safework inspector fully satisfied with the actions taken by Aerocare. The second involved a parked bus catching fire in freak circumstances. The bus had passed all safety checks prior to the incident and subsequent reviews by various authorities confirmed there were no deficiencies in Aerocare's maintenance programs.

On all the incidents that have been raised, Aerocare has advised the ABC to check in with the regulators, including relevant workcover authorities, given they regularly scrutinise, regulate and audit the Company.

Finally, the 7.30 Report has presented Aerocare with inaccurate and misleading data that purports to reflect internal information regarding Aerocare's workplace injury incidence. Having reviewed the data submitted by the 7.30 Report in detail, Aerocare can confirm that there is no correlation between the asserted statistics and the injury performance of the Company, which is regularly audited by workcover authorities and insurers.

In light of the 7.30 Report's continued presentation of inaccurate and misleading material, and the fact that the program has not acknowledged the errors in its program last month, Aerocare has declined the program's request to provide a spokesman or Aerocare-provided footage to appear on air.

TWU

The TWU has publicly stated two key ambitions in its negotiations with Aerocare: to make split shifts optional, when they already are, and to increase minimum shift lengths to four hours, which Aerocare had already proactively proposed to staff two months ago.

Given these claims are satisfied and that investigations have shown no basis to their claims regarding poor employment conditions, Aerocare believes the TWU is conducting a concerted campaign to damage the Company's good standing and business prospects, which is a clear demonstration that the union does not represent the views or interests of Aerocare employees.

EBA NEGOTIATIONS

Aerocare is looking forward to finalising its EBA which will continue to provide above award conditions and with split shifts continuing to be provided at the employee's option.

The latest draft agreement proposes increasing wage rates this year across the board by at least 5%, on top of additional tenure-based increases. These commitments come at a time where the business' large global competitors are actively announcing their intention to cut costs and reduce wages.

AEROCARE ROSTERING ARRANGEMENTS

Employees working more than one shift in a day ("split shifts") occurs regularly in the aviation industry in Australia, and elsewhere in the world, given rosters are determined by fluctuating flight schedules and aircraft turn-around times.

It generally takes three hours to fully service an international aircraft, highlighting that shorter shifts are sometimes required to meet the demands of airline customers.

Many of Aerocare’s competitors and other industry participants allow for and engage in split shifts in their rostering. Some larger players are able to sustain a higher proportion of longer single shifts as they have more contracts that deliver more consistent flight schedules and higher revenue.

It bears noting that split-shifting is also common in the hospitality and transport industries, amongst others.

Aerocare Chief Executive Glenn Rutherford said that the company has spent millions of dollars improving its rostering system to maximise the duration of employee shifts:

"It is an industry-wide issue but we are making significant progress. Since the last EBA (Enterprise Bargaining Agreement), which was fully ratified by the Fair Work Commission, Aerocare has seen average shift lengths increase as we’ve won more contracts and work.

"Months ago, under the EBA currently in negotiation we therefore proactively offered to increase minimum shifts from 3 hours to 4 hours. Our intent, as always, is to make individual shifts last as long as possible.

"The employee’s option to work split shifts was included in our last EBA, which was voted in favour for by 97% of our staff.

"Having spent much of the last three months personally canvassing over 1,000 employees, the overwhelming feedback is that they want the option of split shifts to remain in the next EBA and, so, we will look to retain that option again as we are sympathetic to the very real economic needs of our employees and want to provide them with every opportunity we have to sustainably increase their income.

"As we win more contracts our goal is to further reduce the time between shifts.

"As regards media claims regarding work practices at Sydney and Brisbane airports, our staff there, as with our other ports, are provided with comfortable, furnished, air conditioned and heated lounge areas to utilise for breaks or in between shifts. If we can find evidence, at any of our ports, that our staff are engaged in any un-safe or against-policy practices between shifts, we and the airport authorities will act swiftly."
“That said, we are confident that fatigue is not a factor in our workforce. In 22 years where we have handled over one million flights, Aerocare has never been penalised for a safety related issue. That is not to refute that incidents can and do occur but, importantly, they are proven to occur much less frequently at Aerocare than in the broader industry and, when they do occur, are well documented, correctly processed and reported, as required, to airline customers and regulatory authorities.

“We have one of the lowest lost-time injury frequency rates in our industry, with our latest annual result totalling <2.7 events across the company per million hours worked, which is less than a third of the published industry average. In other words, on average, competitor employees are three times more likely to lose time to injury than Aerocare employees are. In addition, Aerocare passed every one of the over 180 safety and security related audits which we were subjected to last year and we are the only Australian-owned ground handler to be awarded the top global ISAGO safety accreditation,” Mr Rutherford said.

Aerocare continues to investigate all recent media reports that claim that some workers have been sleeping on site or in their cars because of the length of time between split shifts. As regards the unverified footage purported to depict working conditions at Sydney International Airport, Aerocare’s investigations, alongside those of Sydney Airport and Australian Border Force, confirm that there is no evidence of the alleged employee “camps” depicted in the media last week.

To illustrate the prevalence and nature of split shifts in its system, Aerocare has conducted a detailed analysis of Sydney International Airport rosters over the last six months, which has confirmed that the overwhelming majority of shifts worked by its employees were single shifts.

- Of the 30,653 shifts worked, approximately 12% (or 3,829 shifts) were shifts worked by someone who had worked another shift that day. The average gap between the two shifts was 1.7 hours.

- On 2,732 occasions, out of the 3,829 split shifts, the gap between shifts was less than 2 hours. On only 204 occasions (ie <1% of total shifts) was the gap between the shifts more than five hours.

- On average, the overall “span” of a split shift (ie the combination of a first shift, plus a gap break taken either on or off site, plus a second shift) totalled 10.5 hours.

- Many of the longer “spans” tend to be associated with flight delays, which mean the team regrettably works a longer span than originally rostered.

SUMMARY

In summary, we wish to reiterate the following key points:

ABC Reports

1. The ABC’s independent legal review of the two 7.30 episodes has admitted to various “breaches of editorial standards” and retracted and/or apologised for some aspects of both episodes. However, the ABC has failed to:

   a. Sufficiently highlight or address the omissions made by it;

   b. Properly respond to significant issues raised by Aerocare, including Aerocare’s complaint that 7.30 altered and broadcast illegally-obtained official documents, resulting in an incorrect story and false impression at a critical juncture in Aerocare’s enterprise bargaining negotiations.

   c. Acknowledge that all of the independent experts interviewed by 7.30 (including one who withdrew their ability to use his footage once he became convinced of their bias) have subsequently confirmed they were either misled or misquoted by the program.
Consequently, the ABC and the Australian media regulator, ACMA, continue to investigate these various serious admissions.

2. The response to Aerocare by industry stakeholders (i.e. regulators / airports / airlines) post the ABC 7.30 coverage has been universally positive and none have articulated any concerns regarding Aerocare. In fact, Aerocare has been commended for its proactive and “open book” approach in responding to the matter. In particular, Aviation regulators have also confirmed that the various incidents reported in dramatised and sensationalised fashion as serious safety risks by the ABC were for the most part, in fact, not risks at all. Regulators have also confirmed that no individual or union has ever raised with them any of the various complaints aired regarding Aerocare’s work practices (even after the ABC’s reports).

Safety Standards of Aerocare

3. Of particular note given the focus placed on Sydney Airport is that, since the ABC report was published, SafeWork NSW has conducted a comprehensive review of Aerocare’s Sydney operations and provided confirmation that they had no resultant concerns and therefore had no intention to conduct further investigation. No complaints related to the claims made in the media have been lodged with them.

4. Aerocare has a three times lower long-term injury frequency rate than the industry average.

5. Aerocare has no open regulatory issues and maintains a 25 year record of zero penalties for either aviation or workplace safety issues despite handling over one million flights in that time and despite a huge number of audits (180 last year and 80 this year to date).

6. Aerocare is the only Australian ground handler with the top global safety accreditation – IATA Safety Audit for Ground Operations (ISAGO).

TWU & ASU

7. The TWU has never approached Aerocare to discuss its concerns or made any complaints to regulators. It was effectively silent on all matters relating to Aerocare for the four years prior to the latest EBA negotiation.

(a) It is important to note that the TWU has repeatedly attacked Aerocare for continuing to provide its employees with the option of working “split shifts” despite the fact that the TWU itself ratified enterprise agreements that include split shifts for (more heavily unionized) competitors of Aerocare, including Skystar, which is a subsidiary of UK giant Menzies Aviation.

8. On this basis, it is the opinion of Aerocare that the TWU has taken the course of disputing the new EBA purely as a result of its very low membership rate with Aerocare staff (estimated at less than 5% and noting that the TWU itself states that it currently only has a “handful” of members at the company).
9. The unions have raised issues regarding Aerocare’s engagement with casual employees under the latest EBA, although they have failed in their attack to acknowledge that:

(a) Aerocare has made a standing, open offer to convert all casual employees to permanent positions to provide greater security and to address the typical union complaint regarding “casualisation” of the workforce; and

(b) The fact that the vast majority of Aerocare employees are, in fact, permanent employees (greater than 80% and increasing through conversion and attrition).

10. Confidently, Aerocare is investigating an individual in relation to allegations of misconduct brought forward by concerned / fearful co-workers, who also happens to be a TWU delegate. An independent investigator has been appointed and the employee, who has not been subject to disciplinary action, has been stood down on full pay, while the investigation continues.

11. Given union propaganda alleging a “culture of fear” at Aerocare, in addition to the landslide EBA vote and outstanding satisfaction ratings, it is important to note that Aerocare has never been subject to a general protections claim or unfair dismissal claim that in any way correlates to the idea that employees are adversely treated for being union members or voicing concerns over Aerocare business.

Fair Work / CA17 Hearing

12. Notwithstanding complaints of unfair process by the TWU, an overwhelming majority of employees (82.9%) voted in favour of the latest EBA (CA17), with a participation rate of 89%.

(a) If all employees who abstained cast a ‘NO’ vote, then there would have still been an absolute majority (with 100% participation). Similarly, if all Casual employees were eligible to vote, and cast a ‘NO’ vote, there would have still been an absolute majority.

(b) The balloting system that was used was the same that has been used for previous collective agreements, including the last Aero-Care Collective Agreement 2012. The voting mechanism used has historically been approved by the Fair Work Commission and never contested by any employee. In addition, the vote timing was approved by the Fair Work Commission despite the unions seeking to delay the ballot.

13. Aerocare is keen to have CA17 approved for the benefit, and at the desire, of its employees.
14. Aerocare is confident that it will demonstrate at the BOOT hearing listed this Friday, 16 June 2017, that CA17 is better than the Award.

ADDITIONAL DETAIL

BOOT Hearing

15. Further to our telephone message of last week, we confirm that CA17 has been listed to be heard before Commissioner Wilson in Melbourne on 16 June 2017 at 3.00pm.

16. In this respect, we enclose our Form F17 – Employer’s statutory declaration in support of an application for approval of an enterprise agreement (Form 17) for your review.

17. Whilst we have absolutely no issue with Commissioner Wilson, it is to be observed/noted that:

(a) Our client’s Head Office is in Brisbane;

(b) Our client’s BOOT application was filed by us in Brisbane;

(c) Deputy President Asbury (Brisbane) is on the aviation industry panel;

(d) Commissioner Wilson (Melbourne) is not on the aviation industry panel;

(e) Deputy President Clancy (Melbourne) was recently involved in a good faith bargaining application related to the BOOT process and is on the aviation panel;

(f) The TWU’s and ASU’s National Head Offices are in Melbourne.

18. We have not sought any explanation as to the reasons for the allocation of Commissioner Wilson or for our client being put to the inconvenience of having to fly all of its witnesses, representatives and relevant managers to Melbourne (with no such cost or inconvenience to the unions) despite the connection of the application to Brisbane.

19. While we anticipate being picketed at Exhibition Street for the hearing, you are of course welcome to send an observer to the open hearing. If the attendee identifies themselves, we will endeavour to assist their understanding of the hearing and matters being raised.

ABC 7.30 Report update

20. We advise that our client has received a less than satisfactory response from the ABC regarding their previous written complaints about the two broadcast stories as detailed in the two previous Ministerial briefings. While the ABC did retract and/ or apologise for some minor aspects of both stories, the balance were either ignored or demurred. Those unresolved/ unaddressed complaints are now in the process of being referred to ACMA.
21. In summary of our client's chief concerns:

(a) Both of the independent experts interviewed by 7.30 have subsequently confirmed they were either misled or misquoted by the ABC reporter; and a third independent expert not depicted confirmed to Aerocare that he withheld the use of his footage as he was of the view that the ABC reporter had no real interest in his opinion and only in soundbites intended to show Aerocare in a poor light;

(b) The ABC's independent legal review of the two 7.30 episodes has admitted to various "breaches of editorial standards", however the ABC has not indicated any intention to highlight these admissions to a similar degree of prominence as the original stories. Our client's complaint that the 7.30 team falsified various illegally-obtained official documents as part of its coverage has gone unaddressed publicly to date;

(c) The ABC and ACMA continue to investigate our client's various serious concerns; however our client is reserving its rights as to how to progress given the gravity of the complaints and their consequences/implications;

(d) Since the last 7.30 story in May 2017, the Company has proactively engaged with all industry stakeholders on an "open book" basis to ensure all regulators / airports / airlines / employees and other interested parties can ask whatever questions and perform whatever reviews they would like to reassure themselves of Aerocare's performance. Our client's management can confirm that all of these stakeholders remain supportive and that there are no open actions/ questions on the matters raised by the ABC. Of particular note given the prominence afforded to Sydney Airport in the coverage is that SafeWork NSW has in recent weeks visited and reviewed Aerocare's safety management; and management are pleased to confirm that SafeWork NSW has advised that no further action is required. In fact, Aerocare has been commended for its proactive cooperation, and the regulator's confirmation underscores Aerocare's disappointment that the ABC (and TWU) made no enquiry of the regulator before publishing its inaccurate and misleading stories.

Regulatory Matters

22. Our clients continue to be bedevilled with misinformation and miscommunication from the TWU in relation to safety matters at various airports at which our client provides services.

23. In order to highlight the inaccuracy of the information the unions continue to publish in relation to the safety regime of our client, we are instructed to disclose the following interactions with following regulatory bodies:
Civil Aviation Safety Authority (CASA)

24. Three CASA Regional Managers, representing all Air Operator Certificates that Aerocare handles, attended on our client on 3 May 2017, along with a CASA Safety Assurance Team Leader. CASA were provided with an overview of the 7.30 report and the events raised in the broadcast stories. The CASA representatives were then invited to raise any concerns they might have in relation to Aerocare. In response the CASA representatives advised they did not have any concerns with Aerocare. Indeed since the first broadcast story on 20 March 2017, CASA has undertaken 5 audits of airlines utilising Aerocare (PERx2, SYD, BNE, MEL). Our client is also aware that CASA has engaged direct with its customer airlines regarding safety at Aerocare and that these airlines have expressed their support.

25. CASA has previously indicated that it is reluctant to provide any formal statement commenting on the adequacy or audit of aviation safety matters, however if such correspondence is provided, copies will be supplied to you.

Aerocare Safety Assurance Activities

26. To date this year, our client has conducted 80 audits across its customer base, including 28 in APR/MAY following the initial 7.30 broadcast.

27. Despite concerns raised by the TWU regarding safety at Aerocare, our client is aware from company disclosure that following successful handover of ground handling operations, safety and resulting safety statistics have improved under Aerocare as compared to the airline itself. This includes operations in Melbourne, Sydney, Brisbane, Perth and Hobart.

Safework NSW

28. Our client continues to actively engage with Safework NSW, who have visited Aerocare at Sydney airport on 2 occasions - 28th April and 30th May 2017. Safework NSW on both occasions spoke direct with airport operational staff and worker representatives; and were provided with safety related information and documentation. Documentation supplied to Safework NSW included:

(a) Workers Compensation Insurance Policy Currency
(b) Manual Handling Training
(c) Human Factors Program, including Fatigue Management
(d) Safety Consultation
(e) Injury rates
(f) Airport driving program

29. On 30th May, a Safework NSW inspector spent approximately 3 hours in the Sydney Operation reviewing Aerocare activities and speaking with staff and trainers. At the conclusion of this visit, Safework NSW has advised that they do not see the need for any ongoing investigations into their operations.

30. To be clear, Safework NSW has NOT received any complaints regarding our client – these meetings and attendances were at the invitation of our client.

Worksafe VIC

31. Our client has actively engaged with Worksafe VIC since the story broadcasts; especially since the ABC advised our clients that they had obtained 12 years of Worksafe VIC Information and reports through FOI. Initially Worksafe VIC advised that they do not respond to media reports and as there had been no complaints made against our client they would not be looking into the matter; however they were prepared to advise that they have no current safety concerns regarding our client.

Safework WA

32. Safework WA have advised that they also do not respond to media reports; and as there had been no complaints made against our client, they had no reason to investigate or meet with our client.

Worksafe QLD

33. Similar to the other regulators, Worksafe QLD has indicated that they only respond to complaints or notified events and not to media reports. As no complaints had been made, Worksafe QLD had no concerns with or proposals to take action in relation to our clients.

WH&S Regulator Summary

34. No safety complaints have been made by staff, unions, or any other party to any regulator regarding safety at Aerocare.

35. Despite former staff appearing on camera citing safety concerns, none of those staff have made safety complaints to any regulator.

36. Despite the union claiming safety concerns, they have not formally raised any concerns with any state safety regulators.

Yours faithfully

   Expiry date
   4 years from the date of approval by the Fair Work Commission

Scope of the agreement

2.2 Does the agreement cover all the employees of the employer (other than senior executives)?
   [ ] Yes
   [X] No

If No – what group(s) of employees are covered by the agreement. Explain why you think the Commission should be satisfied that this group(s) was fairly chosen. If appropriate, describe any geographical, operational or organisational qualities that make the group(s) distinct.

This agreement covers operational employees of the Applicant who are Permanent Secure Employees (PSE) (permanent part-time and permanent full-time). It does not cover casual employees, or employees of the applicant who are employed in non-operational roles, such as managerial, and administrative support functions conducted at the company’s headquarters.

It does not cover all operational employees.

The distinction between the operational employees so covered and operational employees not covered is on the basis of the seniority of the different roles. The Agreement covers employees in less senior roles and to this extent, these employees are operationally distinct to employees in more senior roles.

The Commission can be satisfied that the distinction between casual employees, who are not covered by the Agreement and PSEs who are covered by the agreement is fairly chosen because of the following reasons:

a) The Applicant has a stated preference that all employment in its operational arm is to be permanent in nature; and

b) The Applicant will only be offering PSE jobs and will not be offering casual employment in the future; and

c) Any existing employee who prefers to not take up a PSE position will continue to receive the benefits provided by the Aero-Care Collective Agreement 2012 (AE899834)

2.3 Did the employer take all reasonable steps to give notice of their right to be represented by a bargaining representative to each employee who will be covered by the agreement?

[X] Yes – please attach a copy of the notice given to employees

[ ] No

Aerocare operates an internal network (Aero-Net) which is used to communicate to all employees. A copy of the attached notice was sent to each employee, via Aero-Net on 27 January 2017. All employees must access this internal network to view rosters and information from their employer. Each employee was required to acknowledge that they had seen the notice as posted on 27 January 2017. Additionally a copy of the attached notice was posted on the staff notice board at each work site.

On 3 March the employer reissued the NERR to all employees, including employees that had been employed between 27 January 2017 and the date of this second notice. It is this second NERR that is attached to this declaration.

Agreement genuinely approved

2.4 What steps were taken by the employer and on what date were they taken to ensure that the relevant employees were either:

a. given a copy of the written text of the agreement and any other material incorporated by reference into the agreement (must be provided during the 7 days before the start of the voting process), or

b. had access to the above materials (must have access throughout the whole 7 day period)?

Describe the steps taken

Aerocare Flight Support used Aero-Net to provide each employee a copy of the proposed agreement. Each employee had to acknowledge that they had received a copy of the proposed EA.

The Agreement does not incorporate any external material.

2.5 When did you notify the relevant employees of the date and place at which the vote was to occur and the voting method to be used?

Q-6198149;1Fair Work Commission Approved Forms – approved 23 December 2016
Aerocare produced a notice that included details of how, when and where the ballot was to be conducted. This memo was placed on Aero-Net at the same time as a copy of the proposed agreement. A copy of this memo dated 7 April 2017 is attached.

2.6 What steps were taken by the employer to explain the terms of the agreement, and the effect of those terms, to the relevant employees?

From January 2017, senior executives of Aerocare began a series of meetings with employees regarding the proposed agreement. These meetings included a Q&A component.

All relevant employees were provided with a series of memos from management, throughout the bargaining period, explaining the terms of the agreement and the progress of negotiations.

Additionally, all employees received copies of draft agreements on 15 March 2017 and an updated draft agreement on 29 March 2017. The actual agreement that employees voted on in April evolved from these earlier draft agreements.

Aerocare management continued to meet with employees, at each location throughout March and April to explain the terms of the various drafts and the effects of those terms to employees.

From the start of the access period on 7 April 2017 additional meetings were held in each location between the port managers of the Applicant and all employees.

On 13 April a further document, explaining in brief terms the differences between the proposed agreement and the existing agreement was also circulated to all employees.

2.7 When you explained the terms of the agreement to the employees, what did you do to take into account the particular circumstances and needs of the relevant employees?

Examples of employees who have ‘particular circumstances and needs’ include employees from non-English speaking backgrounds, young employees, employees who don’t have a bargaining representative, etc.

All employees are competent in English and the steps taken to explain the agreement were appropriate having regard to the long history of enterprise bargaining in the company and the usual methods of the company in communicating with employees.

Dear Ministers,

I am making contact given your interest in our operations, and unfounded and misleading claims that have been made in two recent stories on ABC’s 7.30 program.

As an initial issue, Aerocare is a business with a long and established track record over a 25 year period and has never previously faced any adverse media reports or regulatory penalties. In relation to our operational and compliance performance, we would draw the following facts to your attention:

- The company has an industry-leading safety record;
- Aerocare’s Lost Time Frequency Injury Rate is less than one-third the industry average using Safe Work Australia’s own definition and benchmarks;
- The Company has never been penalised for a single safety or workplace issue across its 25 year history of handling over one million flights;
- Last year alone, the Company was subjected to over 180 audits by regulators, customers and airports and there is a similar level of scrutiny every year;
- Aerocare is frequently awarded for its safety performance and is the only Australian-owned ground handler with the top global safety accreditation, ISAGO;
- We pay above award rates and conditions;
- 83% of our workforce have just voted to approve the latest EBA which delivers increased pay and improved conditions;
- Previous EBAs were all similarly approved with very strong votes and all were explicitly ratified by the Fair Work Commission as offering better-than-award conditions;
- Aerocare is increasing wages and growing its workforce while global competitors are cutting back and looking to reduce pay rates.

In our view, the recent 7.30 stories were motivated and specifically-timed attempts by the Transport Workers Union (TWU) to negatively influence the outcome of the latest Aerocare enterprise bargaining agreement. Three weeks ago, and a full month after the initial 7.30 story, Aerocare’s new enterprise agreement was overwhelming approved by Aerocare’s workforce, with a strong 83% vote in favour of the new compact which will deliver pay increases across the board. This vote is clearly a strong endorsement of Aerocare’s operations by its employees.
Disappointingly, the 7.30 Report stories were marred by false, misconceived and malicious accusations, brought forward by anonymous sources or disgruntled former employees, most of which now work for our foreign commercial competitors. Significantly, both of the independent experts and a number of other sources depicted in the stories have subsequently expressed concern directly to Aerocare about the way their views were presented in that they were misled or that the data and scenarios put to them by the reporter did not match the scenarios or facts then outlined in the story. One of the more prominently featured former employees has also stated in writing that 7.30 itself falsified flight file documents when it could not find any evidence for one of the core accusations aired.

We note that the ABC's own independent internal review has found that 7.30's first story in relation to our company breached the ABC editorial standards for accuracy. We believe the same conclusion is likely to be reached for the review that is ongoing into the second story.

The deeply held concerns that Aerocare has in relation to the 7.30 stories have also been notified to the Australian Communications and Media Authority (ACMA). Aerocare has asked the ACMA to conduct an investigation of its complaint under s150 of the Broadcasting Services Act 1992.

Importantly, we have been in regular dialogue with all Federal and State regulators and safety agencies, our airline customers, and the airports themselves to offer "open book" access should they have any concerns. We are encouraged by their ongoing support, their confidence in our operations and our trained workforce, and our strong focus on workplace safety. Whilst many of these entities naturally had questions in the wake of the two 7.30 stories, they have all subsequently been provided with detailed responses and facts and none have articulated to Aerocare any extant concerns. Indeed, we have since commenced or been awarded a number of new contracts.

As regards the motivation of the TWU, and as a former TWU delegate myself, I would like to point out my disappointment that the union has never made any contact with Aerocare about the allegations which it is circulating. This is confusing given that the TWU claims to represent the best interests of its members employed in the industry and yet it does not engage with the company on any level to identify any work health and safety concerns or seek to work collaboratively to assess and address them. It is also disappointing that the TWU has publicly criticised Aerocare for certain features of our enterprise agreements – e.g. offering split shifts at the employee's option – when they themselves have ratified the same features of the agreements of our foreign-owned competitors.

Should you have any questions around Aerocare's operations, and more specifically around the misleading and false allegations that were raised in the 7.30 stories, please don't hesitate to contact me directly.

I have attached the five press releases that we have issued on this matter for your convenience, the detail of which I would be very happy to walk you through in person. I think it is important that you understand the facts before you draw any conclusions from the 7.30 stories and associated TWU positioning.

We are very appreciative of the wide level of support that has been expressed by the aviation industry over the last few weeks and we intend to continue to provide industry-leading levels of safety and service as we focus on growing our business in Australia.

Thank you for your interest in this matter.

Yours sincerely,

ABC 7.30 REPORTS ALLEGATIONS AND PASSES OVER THE FACTS IN AEROCARE STORY

The story about Aerocare in the 7.30 Report of 20 April amounted to a second unwarranted attack upon Aerocare's operations and record.

The story reflected misleading allegations made by the Transport Workers Union during a multi-week campaign, and are timed to attempt to influence the negotiation and development of the latest Aerocare Enterprise Bargaining Agreement.

In the face of this campaign, Aerocare employees voted this week in a landslide to adopt the latest EBA - an endorsement of Aerocare employee and workplace conditions from those who are in the best place to judge.

The 7.30 Report program was underpinned by the claims of two former Aerocare employees. Their accusations were baseless, misconceived and/or demonstrably false.

Aerocare provided extensive factual material and context to the 7.30 Report in response to these allegations. This was all but passed over in the uncritical airing of claims by a handful of individuals who are no longer part of the business.

CARGO DOOR CLOSURE

For example, 7.30 showed a former Aerocare worker claiming that his baggage handling supervisor was accidentally "locked" in the cargo hold of a plane "about to take off" from Brisbane Airport. As the ABC was made aware weeks ago with copies of the extensive incident reports and the supervisors' own detailed statement, the supervisor was in fact not locked in the hold or in any way desperate. He opened a prematurely-closed door from the inside and exited the plane.

The incident occurred when the plane was being loaded. The plane was not about to take off and could not have taken off without clearance from the supervisor himself. The relevant regulator, the Australian Transport Safety Bureau, has specifically confirmed that the event was not reportable but, despite being aware of this key fact, the ABC has chosen to misleadingly portray this as a safety issue and a failure in incident reporting.

ALLEGED DEHYDRATION INCIDENT

The ABC also reported on an incident involving a former employee, who claimed he had to leave a shift on 2 December 2014 because of severe dehydration.

At no time did or anyone else report this incident or any associated issues to Aerocare. There is no record of reporting this alleged incident as a workplace injury to anyone or at any time.
When this allegation was first put to Aerocare last week, investigations identified that Section 47F(1) was heavily involved in a State Emergency Service operation in the days leading up to the 2 December and, on the day, it was confirmed that he worked for less than two hours before leaving his shift with an infection.

He returned to work in an unrestricted capacity and reporting no issues only 36 hours after leaving his prior shift. To attribute severe dehydration to less than two hours work is implausible. These facts, and others, were put to 7.30 but ignored.

Aerocare has investigated these and other claims that the ABC has put to it and in every instance provided comprehensive facts and rebuttals. 7.30 chose to report sensationalist allegations while ignoring or giving lip service to the truth and has failed in its commitment to fair and accurate reporting.

Aerocare Chief Executive Mr Rutherford said: “I have had strong feedback from a huge number of employees stating that they resent the TWU’s concerted campaign to undermine our company. Aerocare goes to extraordinary lengths to engage with, look after and reward our employees, and senior management have direct contact with our front-line workers and conduct monthly staff surveys for any feedback.

Aerocare has made significant investment in rostering practices and technology to maximise roster likability and minimise fatigue, as well as allowing flexibility for individuals. Any notion that Aerocare doesn’t care about people is ludicrous. Our employee ballot overwhelmingly supported the latest EBA and obviously provides the best possible evidence as to how Aerocare’s entire labour force views wage and overall employment conditions.

As regards the ABC, I find it hard to believe that a program and a broadcaster which commits to independence and integrity has run a story riddled with errors and statements from people who are disgruntled ex-employees of Aerocare in the context of a focussed campaign by the TWU.

The true story of Aerocare is one of a successful Australian employer with an industry-leading safety record, not the misleading claims of ex-employees now working for competitors or those seeking to undermine the company.”

AEROCARE REJECTS CLAIMS IN ABC STORY

Aerocare rejects the allegations published by the ABC on its website today.

Aerocare takes employee concerns and workplace conditions seriously. The allegations are sensational and inaccurate and ignore the factual material which Aerocare has provided to the ABC.

With regard to the specific allegations, Aerocare provides the following information.

CARGO HOLD
Allegation
A former Aerocare worker inaccurately told 7.30 that a baggage handling supervisor was accidentally “locked” in the cargo hold of a plane about to take off from Brisbane airport, but that the incident was never reported to safety authorities.

Fact
As the ABC is aware, the supervisor was not locked in the hold. He opened the door from the inside and exited the plane. It is not possible to lock someone in the cargo hold.

The incident occurred when the plane was being loaded. It was not about to take off and could not have taken off without clearance from the supervisor himself. Importantly the ABC is fully aware that the regulator, the Australian Transport Safety Bureau, has confirmed that the incident was not reportable but it seems this key fact has been misleadingly omitted.

WASTE AND WATER
Allegation
A former employee claimed Aerocare put passenger health at risk by using the same staff member to clear toilet waste and then, just hours later, refill drinking water on plane. This is an intentionally misleading and mischievous statement.

Fact
Aerocare typically rosters separate people for waste and water services. Contrary to the intentionally disturbing way that the practice is presented it is also acceptable practice for waste and water services to be delivered by the same employee, provided adequate hygiene practices are followed, as trained by Aerocare and mandated by customers.

SAFETY
Aerocare takes the safety of its workers seriously and has a strong audited safety record in all of its operations without a single penalty over 25 years. It is frequently awarded for its safety performance and is the only Australian-owned ground handler with the top global safety accreditation, ISAGO.
Aerocare’s Lost Time Frequency Injury Rate is less than one third the industry average: i.e. staff are three times more likely to be injured working for a competitor.

EBA

Most importantly, Aerocare’s staff this week voted overwhelmingly in favour of a new Enterprise Bargaining Agreement. There was a high participation rate of 88 per cent, with a resounding 83 per cent vote in favour of a new four-year agreement. This will deliver pay rises and additional new benefits across the board.

The vote was conducted in an appropriate and auditable manner, which was previously specifically approved by the Fair Work Commission.

AEROCARE PROVIDES UPDATE ON CURRENT ISSUES

- Key employee ballot to approve the latest EBA to will begin this Saturday with management confident of strong support

As part of a calculated campaign by the Transport Workers Union (“TWU”) initiated in the lead-up to an employee vote to adopt a new Enterprise Bargaining Agreement (“EBA”), Aerocare has been questioned by the ABC on the Company’s injury performance in recent years.

Aerocare confirms that it has one of the lowest, if not the lowest, injury frequency and severity in the industry. Aerocare employees are, on average, over three times less likely to lose time to injury than peers employed elsewhere in the sector under Safe Work Australia’s own definition.

Although not typically published, for the sake of transparency, Aerocare’s provides below its audited workcover injury data as proof of its excellent track record.

(a) An aircraft turnaround is defined as a single aircraft arrival and departure

SAFETY | EFFICIENCY | INTEGRITY
In 25 years of handling more than a million flights, the Company has never had a penalty imposed on it by a workcover entity, underscoring that there is no basis for suggesting that the culture and work practices of the Aerocare are unsafe.

To the contrary, the business is regularly audited and awarded on its achievements and record. Aerocare’s overall lost-time injury frequency rate (using Safe Work Australia’s definition) for the current financial year is <1 incident per million hours worked, which is an outstanding result, particularly in a complex industrial environment like an airport where incidents can and do happen.

As regards Sydney International, which has been the focus of much attention, the Company affirms an overall low injury rate recorded for Aerocare employees, with zero major injuries where lost-time was above 7 days recorded for that port in the current financial year, and only four in total since January 2015.

During this period a total of over 650 employees were part of the overall Sydney International workforce and collectively serviced over 12,000 flights. Reflective of this strong performance, the Company’s NSW workcover insurance premium is in line with the national average rate.

CLAIMS OF SLEEPING “CAMPS” AT AIRPORTS DEBUNKED

On Monday 3rd April, Australian airport authorities, alongside Aerocare, confirmed that claims of employee sleeping “camps” at airport facilities were totally without foundation.

The Company provided the results of an extensive investigation into recent disturbing media footage of improvised sleeping arrangements, allegedly within one of its airport areas, having worked in parallel with Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane and Perth airports to conduct the investigation.

Aerocare Chief Executive Glenn Rutherford said: “All parties confirmed explicitly to Aerocare that after careful inspection and review of footage and records nothing was found to substantiate the existence of “camps” where people are sleeping on site or any similar practices at any of these locations.

Aerocare and Sydney Airport have also reviewed all their records over the last three years and were only able to uncover a single instance, in April 2016, of personal belongings being left against policy in an unauthorised area of the airport.”

ABC ACKNOWLEDGES FUNDAMENTAL ERRORS IN STORY

The ABC has clarified several errors in the story broadcast on the 7.30 on 20 March 2017, which contained misleading and sensationalist reporting about working conditions at Aerocare. An acknowledgement was posted on the ABC’s website on 5 April 2017 (http://www.abc.net.au/news/2017-04-05/aerocare-pty-ltd/8419082).

The ABC admitted that a key person who appeared on 7.30 had misrepresented himself as an Aerocare employee.

The program introduced §47F(1) as a whistle-blower who was “risking his job to speak out publically.”
In fact, only worked at Aerocare for two months in the first half of 2016 and has since been employed by an Aerocare competitor.

He was a trainee in the catering truck segment of the business, which has no involvement with the baggage areas that he spoke about whilst 7.30 concurrently showed images of purported employee sleeping “camps,” which have themselves been thoroughly disproven after a full investigation involving Australian airport authorities.

The ABC correction also concedes that 7.30 Report misrepresented footage as showing an Aerocare worker sleeping in a luggage container. The ABC now confirms that the person shown was not an employee of Aerocare.

When combined with the results of the parallel investigations that have rejected the “camp” allegations, confirations that the safety incidents raised on the program were not considered risks by the regulator mean the errors conceded by 7.30 leave the entire story with no credibility.

Subsequent to the initial episode the ABC has continued to put various unfounded and unsubstantiated allegations to Aerocare based upon hearsay of former employees and a TWU delegate. Aerocare has provided strong rebuttal and detailed and factual responses to all claims, including unsubstantiated generalized attacks on Aerocare’s document management procedures and audit processes.

Aerocare reaffirms that its practices are regularly audited by regulators and customers and strongly refutes any claims that its systems and processes are in any way deficient, as evidenced by the Company’s outstanding 25 year track record.

INTENTIONALLY MISLEADING STATEMENTS BY TWU DURING EBA NEGOTIATIONS

Aerocare has called out the TWU for making misleading statements during Enterprise Bargaining Agreement negotiations.

Employees working more than one shift in a day (“split shifts”) occurs regularly in the aviation industry in Australia, and elsewhere in the world, given that rosters are determined by fluctuating flight schedules and aircraft turn-around times.

Many Aerocare competitors and other industry participants allow for and engage in split shifts in their rostering. Split-shifting is also common in the hospitality and transport industries.

At Aerocare, split shifts are only provided at the employee’s option and have been supported by 97% of the company’s employees in the last EBA.

Aerocare Chief Executive, Glenn Rutherford said the TWU was involved in a calculated campaign with regard to the availability of split shifts.

As part of that campaign the TWU has claimed that Aerocare is the “only aviation company whose agreement allows for split shifts, which is specifically excluded under the award.”

ENTERPRISE BARGAINING BALLOT

The key employee ballot to approve the latest EBA, which includes a four hour minimum shift, will commence this Saturday and will obviously provide the best possible proof as to how Aerocare’s entire labour force views wage and overall employment conditions.

Management are confident of strong support, as with the last vote, and note that they are increasing wage conditions and other benefits at a time that competitors are publicly confirming an intention to cut back.

AEROCARE REJECTS CLAIMS OF SLEEPING "CAMPS" AT AIRPORTS AND HIGHLIGHTS EXCELLENT SAFETY CREDENTIALS

AeroCare, alongside Australian airport authorities, today confirmed that claims of employee sleeping "camper" at its airport facilities were totally without foundation.

The Company provided the results of an extensive investigation into recent disturbing media footage of improvised sleeping arrangements, allegedly within one of its airport areas, having worked in parallel with Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane and Perth airports and the Australian Border Force to conduct the investigation.

All parties confirm that after careful physical inspection and review of surveillance footage and digital records they have found nothing to substantiate the existence of "camper" where people are sleeping on site or any similar practices at any of these locations.

AeroCare and Sydney Airport have also reviewed all their records over the last three years and were only able to uncover a single instance, in April 2016, of personal belongings being left against policy in an unauthorised area of the airport.

Records show that an AeroCare employee, who remains with the business, had been identified as storing personal belongings inappropriately and was officially cautioned for the infraction. Items belonging to other parties were also found at that time. The area was cleared and there is no other evidence of such conduct over that three year period.

AeroCare’s Chief Executive, Glenn Rutherford, said: “These claims of our employees sleeping rough at Sydney Airport never made sense. Airport security and Border Force regularly patrol all of our areas and we would act immediately if any evidence of unsanctioned behaviour was discovered.”

“We provide heated, air-conditioned and furnished facilities at each of our ports for employee rest breaks and our our first priority has been, and will always be, an absolute commitment to ensuring that all employees are fully trained, well informed and given the best possible safety conditions in what is a complex and potentially hazardous working environment.”

SAFETY RECORD

AeroCare takes the safety of its workers seriously and has a strong safety record in all of its operations.

AeroCare’s Lost Time Frequency Injury Rate is less than one third the industry average (2.7 events per million hours versus benchmark of 9.1 events) – in other words, on average, you are three times more likely to be injured working for one of AeroCare’s competitors.
Mr Rutherford said: “While ground handling is a complex Industrial service and incidents can and do happen, Aerocare has operated for 25 years and handled over 1,000,000 flights without a single safety or workcover-related penalty. Last year alone, we passed over 180 audits performed by the regulators, customers, and airports. There is a similar level of scrutiny every year.”

A detailed review of incident reports over a two year period demonstrated that fatigue or fatigue-related terms are not cited as a factor in almost any (<0.2%) report. Reports are completed by employees themselves in a culture of regular, open and honest reporting that is commended by customers.

The leading specialist aviation insurance broker, Aerosure, has confirmed that Aerocare’s outstanding safety track record has meant that Aerocare remains one of the most “sought out” accounts by insurers in its sector on a global basis with its premiums reflective of that superior status.

Aerocare’s workers’ compensation insurance premium is 29% less than the industry average, reflective of a strong track record and safety management system.

SAFETY ISSUES

A number of incidents were referred to in a recent ABC 7.30 Report relating to a disabled lift being damaged, and an open cargo door. Aerocare and the relevant authorities have confirmed the two incidents were not safety events.

The 7.30 Report has since sought more information of two additional incidents, one involving a premature closing of a cargo door and another an adverse weather event. Both of the incidents were investigated by the regulator – the ATSB.

In the first case, a cargo door prematurely closed and was then immediately re-opened by the employee inside using internal controls. The plane was stationary, the aircraft door was still open and, as with any opening or closing of a passenger door, the ATSB confirmed there was never any need for an associated safety review.

With regard to the adverse weather (lightning) event that saw two employees injured, after detailed review, the ATSB’s report did not find any deficiency in Aerocare procedures and instead highlighted Aerocare’s proactive actions.

Mr Rutherford said: “These few well documented and handled incidents should be considered in the context of over 170,000 flights being handled this year by over 3,000 employees across the Aerocare system. We are committed to continuing to provide the travelling public with efficient baggage handling and turnaround of planes in a safe workplace environment.

While we treat any of the concerns of our employees or former employees seriously we are concerned by significant factual inaccuracies in the 7.30 Report story. In particular claims made by a person who said he was an employee but is in fact employed by a competitor, and another who provided a statement based upon baseless rumours, misunderstandings and inaccuracies.”

Aerocare has also provided the 7.30 Report with information around two other incidents which appear to have been sensationalised. The first involves an employee who suffered a major but rare workplace accident at Sydney Airport when his toe was crushed. The incident was investigated by Safework NSW, with the Safework inspector fully satisfied with the actions taken by Aerocare. The second involved a parked bus catching fire in freak circumstances. The bus had passed all safety checks prior to the incident and subsequent reviews by various authorities confirmed there were no deficiencies in Aerocare’s maintenance programs.

On all the incidents that have been raised, Aerocare has advised the ABC to check in with the regulators, including relevant workcover authorities, given they regularly scrutinise, regulate and audit the Company.

Finally, the 7.30 Report has presented Aerocare with inaccurate and misleading data that purports to reflect internal information regarding Aerocare's workplace injury incidence. Having reviewed the data submitted by the 7.30 Report in detail, Aerocare can confirm that there is no correlation between the asserted statistics and the injury performance of the Company, which is regularly audited by workcover authorities and insurers.

In light of the 7.30 Report's continued presentation of inaccurate and misleading material, and the fact that the program has not acknowledged the errors in its program last month, Aerocare has declined the program's request to provide a spokesman or Aerocare-provided footage to appear on air.

TWU

The TWU has publicly stated two key ambitions in its negotiations with Aerocare: to make split shifts optional, when they already are, and to increase minimum shift lengths to four hours, which Aerocare had already proactively proposed to staff two months ago.

Given these claims are satisfied and that investigations have shown no basis to their claims regarding poor employment conditions, Aerocare believes the TWU is conducting a concerted campaign to damage the Company's good standing and business prospects, which is a clear demonstration that the union does not represent the views or interests of Aerocare employees.

EBA NEGOTIATIONS

Aerocare is looking forward to finalising its EBA which will continue to provide above award conditions and with split shifts continuing to be provided at the employee's option.

The latest draft agreement proposes increasing wage rates this year across the board by at least 5%, on top of additional tenure-based increases. These commitments come at a time where the business' large global competitors are actively announcing their intention to cut costs and reduce wages.

MEDIA STATEMENT

AEROCARE ROSTERING ARRANGEMENTS

Employees working more than one shift in a day ("split shifts") occurs regularly in the aviation industry in Australia, and elsewhere in the world, given rosters are determined by fluctuating flight schedules and aircraft turn-around times.

It generally takes three hours to fully service an international aircraft, highlighting that shorter shifts are sometimes required to meet the demands of airline customers.

Many of Aerocare's competitors and other industry participants allow for and engage in split shifts in their rostering. Some larger players are able to sustain a higher proportion of longer single shifts as they have more contracts that deliver more consistent flight schedules and higher revenue.

It bears noting that split-shifting is also common in the hospitality and transport industries, amongst others.

Aerocare Chief Executive Glenn Rutherford said that the company has spent millions of dollars improving its rostering system to maximise the duration of employee shifts:

"It is an industry-wide issue but we are making significant progress. Since the last EBA (Enterprise Bargaining Agreement), which was fully ratified by the Fair Work Commission, Aerocare has seen average shift lengths increase as we've won more contracts and work.

"Months ago, under the EBA currently in negotiation we therefore proactively offered to increase minimum shifts from 3 hours to 4 hours. Our intent, as always, is to make individual shifts last as long as possible.

"The employee's option to work split shifts was included in our last EBA, which was voted in favour for by 97% of our staff.

"Having spent much of the last three months personally canvassing over 1,000 employees, the overwhelming feedback is that they want the option of split shifts to remain in the next EBA and, so, we will look to retain that option again as we are sympathetic to the very real economic needs of our employees and want to provide them with every opportunity we have to sustainably increase their income.

"As we win more contracts our goal is to further reduce the time between shifts.

"As regards media claims regarding work practices at Sydney and Brisbane airports, our staff there, as with our other ports, are provided with comfortable, furnished, air conditioned and heated lounge areas to utilise for breaks or in between shifts. If we can find evidence, at any of our ports, that our staff are engaged in any un-safe or against-policy practices between shifts, we and the airport authorities will act swiftly."
"That said, we are confident that fatigue is not a factor in our workforce. In 22 years where we have handled over one million flights, Aerocare has never been penalised for a safety related issue. That is not to refute that incidents can and do occur but, importantly, they are proven to occur much less frequently at Aerocare than in the broader industry and, when they do occur, are well documented, correctly processed and reported, as required, to airline customers and regulatory authorities.

“We have one of the lowest lost-time injury frequency rates in our industry, with our latest annual result totalling <2.7 events across the company per million hours worked, which is less than a third of the published industry average. In other words, on average, competitor employees are three times more likely to lose time to injury than Aerocare employees are. In addition, Aerocare passed every one of the over 180 safety and security related audits which we were subjected to last year and we are the only Australian-owned ground handler to be awarded the top global ISAGO safety accreditation,” Mr Rutherford said.

Aerocare continues to investigate all recent media reports that claim that some workers have been sleeping on site or in their cars because of the length of time between split shifts. As regards the unverified footage purported to depict working conditions at Sydney International Airport, Aerocare’s investigations, alongside those of Sydney Airport and Australian Border Force, confirm that there is no evidence of the alleged employee “camps” depicted in the media last week.

To illustrate the prevalence and nature of split shifts in its system, Aerocare has conducted a detailed analysis of Sydney International Airport rosters over the last six months, which has confirmed that the overwhelming majority of shifts worked by its employees were single shifts.

- Of the 30,653 shifts worked, approximately 12% (or 3,829 shifts) were shifts worked by someone who had worked another shift that day. The average gap between the two shifts was 1.7 hours.

- On 2,732 occasions, out of the 3,829 split shifts, the gap between shifts was less than 2 hours. On only 204 occasions (ie <1% of total shifts) was the gap between the shifts more than five hours.

- On average, the overall “span” of a split shift (ie the combination of a first shift, plus a gap break taken either on or off site, plus a second shift) totalled 10.5 hours.

- Many of the longer “spans” tend to be associated with flight delays, which mean the team regrettably works a longer span than originally rostered.

MINISTERIAL UPDATE NUMBER 4

Please find below our further updated briefing to your Minister.

Hearings

1. The TWU and the ASU both filed Production of Documents applications against Aerocare in the Commission.

   (a) Both the TWU and the ASU requested two months of complete unredacted rosters for all airports in searchable computerised form be produced in order to assist them in determining whether the Collective Agreement 2017 (CA17) passed BOOT; and

   (b) The TWU also requested a large number of other documents including (but not limited to) job descriptions, standard operating procedures of Aerocare and its clients, safety notices, client notices, fatigue management protocols or codes of practice, and any advice that may have been provided by Aerocare's bargaining representative to Aerocare regarding BOOT.

Copies of both of these applications are attached for your information.

2. The TWU filed submissions in support of their application, but filed no supporting affidavit with evidence to support it. The ASU did not file any submissions or supporting evidentiary material.
3. On 22 June 2017 a Mention Hearing took place before Commissioner Wilson by telephone to address the Production of Documents applications.

4. As a result of the Mention Hearing, Commissioner Wilson issued an order for the production of documents in the attached form, supported by the attached Reasons.

5. At the Mention Hearing the Commissioner agreed to transfer the hearing of the BOOT application to Brisbane, at the request of the Applicant.

6. The BOOT application hearing has now been set down for 10am on Thursday 13 July and Friday 14 July 2017 in Brisbane, with video conference access to Melbourne and Sydney available upon request of a party to the Commission.

7. As you will note from the attached Order, the required Aerocare records are only to be provided to the FWC in electronic form, otherwise paper copies are only to be made available for inspection at the registry (without copying) to the TWU and/or ASU after s.47F(1) (ASU) and/or s.47F(1) (TWU) provide written undertakings guaranteeing that their union will keep the disclosed information confidential and will not copy or otherwise use or disclose the information in any respect other than to participate in the BOOT process.

It is uncertain, given that the ordered information is not of the nature, content or format sought by either union, whether either union secretary is willing to provide the required undertaking for nominated union staff to view the information once filed in the registry.

Should the Minister wish an advisor to attend the BOOT hearing on 13 and/or 14 July 2017, please do not hesitate to contact s.47F(1) so that we can ensure that they are properly acknowledged and supported in their understanding of the proceedings.

Yours faithfully

5. A copy of any “performance management or disciplinary procedures” referred to in cl 7.9 of the Agreement, as they existed during the “access period” as defined in cl 180(4) of the Act (ie in the seven days from 7 April 2017);

7. The Documents used or relied upon by Mr Gregory Luke Shelley to assist or form his belief as to the truth and accuracy of the Statutory Declaration declared by him on 24 April 2017, and in particular with respect to the answer to question “3.6 Do you think the agreement passes the better off overall test?”.

8. A copy of any document (including but not limited to any letter, memorandum, email, or file note) recording advice provided by the consultancy “first ir consultancy pty ltd” to Aerocare Flight Support Pty Ltd in the period between 27 January 2017 (when the first NERR was issued by the company) and 25 April 2017, as to whether the Aerocare Collective Agreement 2017 passed the better off overall test outlined in s 193 of the Act.

1 Using the expression in cl 11.1 of the Aerocare Collective Agreement 2012
2 to use the language of cl 33.1 of the Agreement the subject of approval, and 27.1 of the Aero-care Collective Agreement 2012
Reason for Documents Being Sought:

Category 1 and 2 – BOOT Compliance Assessment

The Commission is required to consider whether the agreement the subject of the application for approval (the Application, and the Agreement) passes the Better Off Overall Test as outlined in s 193 of the Fair Work Act 2009.

The information presently before the Commission contained in the F17 Statutory Declaration filed in support of the Application, contains no information about the rostering arrangements in the Applicant's enterprise, at any of the workplaces at which the employees of the Applicant who are covered by the Agreement work.

The Commission is unable to properly assess whether each and every employee will be better off overall under the Agreement than under the Award, in the absence of information that enables an assessment of the practical application of the Agreement to the rostering arrangements at each of the workplaces at which employees of the Applicant perform work.

The Information sought in Category 1 and Category 2 above:

a. Inform the broad descriptions of work within the classifications referred to in the Agreement, so as to assist an assessment of the reliability of the translation table (identifying the translation of Agreement classification to reference instrument classification) proffered by the Applicant in support of the Application.

b. Relate to an airport at which the Applicant has employees and who perform work that will be covered by the Agreement (noting it is only one of the workplaces that the Commission must consider in applying the BOOT).

c. Relate to classifications of employee that are covered by the Agreement and the reference instrument, and to which the Agreement will apply if approved.

d. Covers a reasonable time period (ie two roster periods), and a time period that is reasonably proximate in time to the approval application (March and April 2017).

The documents sought are relevant to an assessment that the Commission is required to undertake in considering whether to approve the Agreement.

Categories 3 to 6 – s 180(2) Compliance

In considering whether to approve the Agreement, the Commission is required to consider whether s 180(2) was complied with (by interaction of s 186(2)(a) and s 188(a) of the Act).

The Agreement purports to create rights and/or impose obligations, by reference to documents referred to in Categories 3 to 6 above.

The documents sought in these categories seek copies of the various documents external to the Agreement, as they existed during the access period, and which the TWU contends ought to have been provided (or access ought to have been provided) during the access period.

The documents sought are relevant to an assessment that the Commission is required to undertake in considering whether to approve the Agreement.
Categories 7 and 8

The Commission is required to consider whether the Agreement passes the Better Off Overall Test as outlined in s 193 of the Fair Work Act 2009.

The Applicant has filed a statutory declaration of Mr Gregory Luke Shelley in support of the Application, in which Mr Shelley expresses the opinion that the Agreement passes the BOOT.

The consultancy “first ir consultancy pty ltd” were advising the Applicant during the negotiations for the Agreement, including corresponding with the TWU and ASU.

The documents sought in Categories 7 and 8 are relevant to an assessment that the Commission is required to undertake in considering whether to approve the Agreement.

The documents sought in Categories 7 and 8 are relevant for the cross-examination of Mr Shelley.

The TWU notes that an order in similar terms to that sought in Category 7 was recently made by the Full Bench in [2017] FWCFB 3131

[2] The Commission’s decision in this regard is to issue an Order in the terms set out below (and an actual Order on the subject is issued at the same time as this Statement). The Commission’s Reasons for Decision are in the course of being prepared and will be issued on Monday, 26 June 2017.

At the same time as the union provides its undertaking it will nominate by name and position its counsel, solicitors and instructing representatives who it seeks have access to the Produced Documents. Upon receipt of an undertaking in these terms the Commission will issue a further Order granting access to the union or unions to the Produced Documents, provided that such access will be limited to inspection of the material at the Commission’s Brisbane, Melbourne or Sydney Registries by the union or union's nominated counsel, solicitors and instructing representatives.

REASONS FOR DECISION

Fair Work Act 2009
s.185—Enterprise agreement

Aerocare Flight Support Pty Ltd T/A Aerocare Flight Support
(AG2017/1424)

COMMISSIONER WILSON

MELBOURNE, 26 JUNE 2017

Application for approval of the Aerocare Collective Agreement 2017 - Orders for the production of documents:

[1] An application has been made pursuant to s.185 of the Fair Work Act 2009 (the Act) by Aerocare Flight Support Pty Ltd and Aero-Care Flight Support Unit Trust (collectively referred to as Aerocare) for the Fair Work Commission to approve the Aerocare Collective Agreement 2017.

[2] In support of the application Aerocare has filed the requisite Form F16 setting out the basic information about the agreement and the bargaining representatives and has also filed the Form F17, the Employer Statutory Declaration in support of the application. The material filed by Aerocare indicates that there were two union bargaining representatives, the Australian Municipal, Administrative, Clerical and Services Union (the ASU) and the Transport Workers’ Union (the TWU), and one employee bargaining representative. The material filed by Aerocare also indicates that there will be 1,370 employees to be covered by the agreement; that 1,207 employees cast a valid vote and, of those, 1,001 voted in favour of the making of the agreement. The same material also sets out that all of the 1,370 employees are classified as part-time and that none are classified as casual.

[3] Soon after Aerocare made its application, both the TWU and ASU filed Form F18 Statutory Declarations advising that while each was a bargaining representative in the negotiations leading to the making of the agreement, neither union supported the approval of the agreement by the Fair Work Commission.

[4] In this regard, the ASU put forward that the Commission cannot be satisfied that the agreement pass the better off overall test when compared to the applicable modern award, the Airline Operations—Ground Staff Award 2010, and that the agreement cannot be regarded as having been genuinely agreed to by the employees covered by it for the reason that it does not cover casual employees.

[5] The ASU put forward in the alternative that, if the Commission accepts casual employees are not covered, it cannot be satisfied that the employees to be covered by the agreement were fairly chosen for the reason that Aerocare, it is said, presently employs “at least hundreds of employees on a casual basis, who are covered by the predecessor agreement to the 2017 agreement” and that the casual employees are not operationally or organisationally distinct and thereby should not be excluded from the coverage of the agreement.

[6] The TWU argues that the Commission cannot be satisfied that the agreement passes the better off overall test and that it cannot be satisfied that the group of employees to be covered by the agreement was fairly chosen.

[7] Having received the foregoing documentation, the Commission's staff undertook, in accordance with usual practice, an analysis of the application which was documented in a report to me, entitled Agreement Analysis Summary. That summary has been circulated to the parties upon my direction, but on the basis that it is an internal working document of the Commission which does not represent any decided view of the Commission. In providing the summary to the parties, a direction was given that, because of its status as an internal working document, it must not be circulated beyond those parties appearing in the matter, and their instructors, and must not be copied, distributed or published by them, or by any person to whom they give a copy, in any manner inconsistent with my direction.

[8] Each of the TWU and ASU have made applications to the Commission for the issuing, pursuant to s.590 of the Act, of orders requiring the production by Aerocare of certain documents. The applications are in the following terms;

- TWU

1. A copy of the electronic roster for all of the employees of Aerocare Flight Support Pty Ltd in the classifications of Airline Service Agent, Advanced Airline Service Agent, and each of the Specialist Duties classifications identified in the Aero-Care Collective Agreement 2012 (AE899834), who worked at the Sydney International Airport for each day of the entire roster period or periods, covering the months of March and April 2017.

2. A copy of a job description for each position in which an employee of the Applicant is employed or engaged, at the Sydney International Airport.

3. A copy of the "company standard operating procedures" referred to in cl 6.2.2 of the Agreement, as they existed during the "access period" as defined in cl 180(4) of the Act (ie in the seven days from 7 April 2017);

4. A copy of any:
   a. "safety announcement"
   b. "client notice"
   c. client SOP,
   d. "publications"
   e. "memoranda"

referred to in cl 6.2.3 of the Agreement, as they existed during the "access period" as defined in cl 180(4) of the Act (ie in the seven days from 7 April 2017);
5. A copy of any “performance management or disciplinary procedures” referred to in cl 7.9 of the Agreement, as they existed during the “access period” as defined in cl 180(4) of the Act (ie in the seven days from 7 April 2017);

6. A copy of any:

a. “code of practice”; or
b. “protocol”

   relating to fatigue management and implemented by the Applicant, as existing during the “access period” as defined in cl 180(4) of the Act (ie in the seven days from 7 April 2017).

7. The Documents used or relied upon by Mr Gregory Luke Shelley to assist or form his belief as to the truth and accuracy of the Statutory Declaration declared by him on 24 April 2017, and in particular with respect to the answer to question “3.6 Do you think the agreement passes the better off overall test?”.

8. A copy of any document (including but not limited to any letter, memorandum, email, or file note) recording advice provided by the consultancy “first ir consultancy pty ltd” to Aerocare Flight Support Pty Ltd in the period between 27 January 2017 (when the first NERR was issued by the company) and 25 April 2017, as to whether the Aerocare Collective Agreement 2017 passed the better off overall test outlined in s 193 of the Act.”

   • ASU (as amended)

   “1. A copy of the electronic roster for all of the employees of Aerocare Flight Support Pty Ltd in the classifications of Airline Service Agent, Advanced Airline Service Agent and each of the Specialist Duties classifications identified in the Aero-Care Collective Agreement 2012 (AE899834), who worked at Sydney international Airport, Sydney Domestic Airport, Brisbane Airport, Coolangatta Airport, Melbourne Airport and/or Perth Airport for each day of the entire roster period or periods, covering the months of March and April 2017.”

[9] The applications made by each of the TWU and ASU are strenuously resisted by Aerocare, who submit that the applications made by each of the unions are late in terms of the overall process before the Commission; that certain of the material sought by the two unions is confidential and that it ought not be the subject of an order from the Commission; that other parts of the information sought by the unions is voluminous in nature or is oppressive and that in some cases there are no documents to be produced.

[10] In respect of confidentiality, the case made by Aerocare is set out in an affidavit of Gregory Shelley, its General Manager Employee Relations, who deposed the following about the company’s rostering system, Aeronet;

   “16. Aeronet represents a significant investment in the creation of intellectual property of Aerocare as its rostering is generated by a proprietary IT algorithm and software system. Aerocare has developed its business, market share and current client base over a period of 24 years by operating this unique proprietary software modelling manpower requirements across its workplaces and using essentially what is referred to as 'just in time' resourcing methodology which calculates Aerocare's customer baggage handling requirements in advance of flight arrivals and departures.

17. The leaking of our rosters to competing entities would expose Aerocare to competing organisations better understanding how our system of workflow operates. This in turn would be better positioned to prepare competing competitive tenders. In this case, I both Unions have their significant membership numbers in organisations that compete with Aerocare.

18. Further, the TWU has publically stated and continues to publically state on its Facebook page that Aerocare should not be allowed to operate in Australian airports and the airlines should not be engaging them for their work.\(^{31}\)

\[\text{[11]}\] Mr Shelley's affidavit puts forward that he regards each of the unions as a competing entity. Mr Shelley also refers to an earlier affidavit in earlier proceedings before the Commission in 2012 in which it was deposed by another person, Darren Michael, an investigator and forensic technology practitioner, that provision of electronic rosters, with the consequential access to Aeromet's coding, "could enable the recipient to reverse engineer those codings and allow the recipient to avoid the significant cost, time, and trial and error in recreating the system or creating a similar system.\(^{32}\)

\[\text{[12]}\] In relation to the volume of material sought under the unions' applications for orders for the production of documents, Aerocare points to its operations being across 26 airports and the head office in all states and territories and that with there being 30 combinations of classifications of employees and levels of employees arising from the Aerocare Collective Agreement 2017, the estimated likely volume of rosters that would be required to be produced in conformity with the unions' orders would be in the vicinity of 3000 pages of materials.

\[\text{[13]}\] In relation to oppression, Aerocare put forward that it would be inappropriate to require the provision of material relating to the communications between First IR Consultancy and Aerocare since that would require the disclosure of confidential advice to Aerocare related to the bargaining process. Aerocare also put forward that at least some of the TWU's request seeks documents for the purposes of cross-examination of Mr Shelley. While not protected by legal professional privilege, Aerocare nonetheless put forward that communications to and from First IR Consultancy is analogous to communications to and from the head of the union in relation to its industrial strategy, which has been held in the past as not being in a category of information that should be disclosed. Aerocare also submits that neither union has identified specific employees who will be worse off under the Aerocare Collective Agreement 2017 or any of its members who are alleged to be worse off under the better off overall test.

\[\text{[14]}\] Aerocare also submit, at least in respect of the class of documents sought by the TWU regarding codes of practice or protocols, that the codes of practice are legislative instruments and thereby part of the public record and that in the event the Commission obliged Aerocare to produce the protocols referred to in the TWU's application, there are no such documents in that class.
[15] At the hearing of the unions' applications for these orders, Aerocare submitted that it would be prepared to consent to a limited provision of information to the unions, but only in the event that they were prepared to commit to appropriate undertakings from each as to confidentiality.

[16] The Commission's principles in relation to the making of orders pursuant to s.590 of the Act have recently been summarised in the Full Bench decision in Re: Penelope Vickers:

"[8] The principles applying to the issue of orders for production by the Commission under s.590(2)(c) are well established. The power conferred by s.590(2)(c) is a discretionary one to be exercised for the purpose of the Commission informing itself as to a matter before it. The Commission will be guided in the exercise of its discretion by the practice followed by courts in civil proceedings when issuing subpoenas. The documents sought must have apparent relevance to the issues in the proceedings. Access to the documents sought must be for the purpose of supporting a case which is intended to be advanced, not to explore if there is a supportable basis for a case that might potentially be advanced. The documents required to be produced must be described with sufficient particularity, and the burden of producing them must not be oppressive. (Original references included)"

[17] The matter ultimately to be determined by the Commission upon Aerocare's application is whether or not it should approve the Aerocare Collective Agreement 2017. In addition to making that ultimate decision, the Commission may also do the other things contemplated within Chapter 2 - Part 2 - 4, Division 4 of the Act dealing with the approval of enterprise agreements, which include whether or not the Commission may seek an undertaking pursuant to s.190 in respect of any concerns it may hold that the agreement does not meet the requirements set out in ss.186 and 187. It may also require the inclusion in the agreement of the model consultation term or the model flexibility term (contemplated in Division 5 of Part 2 - 4).

[18] Preliminary consideration of the application, having taken into account the material set out in the Agreement Analysis Summary prepared by Commission staff, leads to the view that it will be necessary for the Commission to understand, with better particularity, the workings of the agreement and especially in respect of the effect of the agreement on certain classifications of employees performing work on weekends or on public holidays. I consider it is necessary and desirable for the Commission to have further information in this respect. Some, but potentially not all, parts of the information proposed by Aerocare as a consent order (if there were to be undertakings given by the unions) address that need. However without yet having seen that information it is impossible at this time to determine whether that material may satisfy the Commission's needs.

[19] In all the circumstances, I consider it both necessary and desirable that there be an order requiring Aerocare to produce documents to the Commission that set out the better off overall analysis in respect of employees generally, but also in respect of certain categories of employees who may be called upon to work weekends or public holidays, to the extent that the general information does not deal with their particular circumstances.

[20] Both the Aerocare Collective Agreement 2017 and the agreement presently operating, the Aero-Care Collective Agreement 2012 provide for Supplementary Hours, Altered Hours and Employee Nominated Hours (noting that there are some differences between the two agreements both as to the content and names of these provisions).

[21] In the Aerocare Collective Agreement 2017, Supplementary Hours are those that an employee requests to work in addition to the hours they may work in a day or a roster period, and which are then paid at the rate of time and half of the Monday to Friday ordinary hours rate.

[22] Altered Hours are requests made by Aerocare that an employee change the start or finish times or both of a rostered shift to meet last-minute changes in operational circumstances.

[23] Employee Nominated Hours deal with the circumstance in which "an overwhelming number of employees have indicated a desire to have the opportunity to maximise their income by undertaking work outside the provisions of clause 9", which deals with the ordinary hours of work to be worked in a day or a roster period. Employee Nominated Hours are then treated as ordinary time.

[24] I consider there is presently insufficient information before the Commission for me to be satisfied that these provisions, in conjunction with the other features of the 2017 agreement, would mean that each employee is better off overall.

[25] Accordingly an Order will be made for the provision by Aerocare of documents relating to its overall use of these forms of hours as they exist under the Aero-Care Collective Agreement 2012.

[26] I have considered each of the TWU and ASU applications and decide each of the classes of documents sought by them as follows:

- The TWU Application

1. A copy of the electronic roster for all of the employees of Aerocare Flight Support Pty Ltd in the classifications of Airline Service Agent, Advanced Airline Service Agent, and each of the Specialist Duties classifications identified in the Aero-Care Collective Agreement 2012 (AE899834), who worked at the Sydney International Airport for each day of the entire roster period or periods, covering the months of March and April 2017.

While this class has apparent relevance to the matters to be determined by the Commission, I accept Aerocare's arguments in respect of the volume of material to be produced and its confidentiality. I consider the class goes beyond the matters that the Commission requires in order to determine the application. I consider the Commission's need in this regard can be satisfied with an order in the more limited terms proposed by Aerocare in respect of the information Mr Shelley had available to him when he formed the view the agreement met the better off overall test.

2. A copy of a job description for each position in which an employee of the Applicant is employed or engaged, at the Sydney International Airport.
This class of documents has apparent relevance and an order in this regard will be made, but in respect of all Aerocare's job descriptions and not restricted to employment at Sydney International Airport.

3. A copy of the "company standard operating procedures" referred to in cl 6.2.2 of the Agreement, as they existed during the "access period" as defined in cl 180(4) of the Act (ie in the seven days from 7 April 2017);

This class of documents has apparent relevance and an order in this regard will be made.

4. A copy of any:
   a. "safety announcement"
   b. "client notice"
   c. client SOP,
   d. "publications"

referred to in cl 6.2.3 of the Agreement, as they existed during the "access period" as defined in cl 180(4) of the Act (ie in the seven days from 7 April 2017);

I am not persuaded this class of documents has apparent relevance to the matters that need to be determined by the Commission, but note that Aerocare, to some extent at least, does not object to provision of its own standard operating procedures, although it does object to the provision of client standard operating procedures. An Order consistent with the extent to which Aerocare is prepared to go with a consent order is made by me, being for documents which I do consider have apparent relevance.

5. A copy of any "performance management or disciplinary procedures" referred to in cl 7.9 of the Agreement, as they existed during the "access period" as defined in cl 180(4) of the Act (ie in the seven days from 7 April 2017);

After consideration of the terms of clause 7.9 of the agreement, I do not consider this class has apparent relevance to the matters that need to be determined by the Commission at this time.

6. A copy of any:
   a. "code of practice"; or
   b. "protocol"

relating to fatigue management and implemented by the Applicant, as existing during the "access period" as defined in cl 180(4) of the Act (ie in the seven days from 7 April 2017).
I do not consider this class has apparent relevance to the matters that need to be determined by the Commission.

7. The Documents used or relied upon by Mr Gregory Luke Shelley to assist or form his belief as to the truth and accuracy of the Statutory Declaration declared by him on 24 April 2017, and in particular with respect to the answer to question “3.6 Do you think the agreement passes the better off overall test?”.

I consider the subject matter of this class, but not its precise formulation, to have apparent relevance to the matters the need to be determined by the Commission. I have had regard to the proposal made by Aerocare for a consent order in the event undertakings in a suitable nature could be provided by the unions and consider that Aerocare's formulation requiring it to provide the better off overall analysis undertaken by Mr Shelley satisfies the Commission's needs. Accordingly an Order consistent with that formulation will be made by me.

8. A copy of any document (including but not limited to any letter, memorandum, email, or file note) recording advice provided by the consultancy "first ir consultancy pty ltd" to Aerocare Flight Support Pty Ltd in the period between 27 January 2017 (when the first NERR was issued by the company) and 25 April 2017, as to whether the Aerocare Collective Agreement 2017 passed the better off overall test outlined in s 193 of the Act.”

I do not consider this class to have apparent relevance to the matters to be determined by the Commission. The class is a fishing expedition. While not covered by legal professional privilege, it is likely that the communications are confidential. No order will be made by me in respect of this class.

- The ASU's amended application;

1. A copy of the electronic roster for all of the employees of Aerocare Flight Support Pty Ltd in the classifications of Airline Service Agent, Advanced Airline Service Agent and each of the Specialist Duties classifications identified in the Aero-Care Collective Agreement 2012 (AE899834), who worked at Sydney International Airport, Sydney Domestic Airport, Brisbane Airport, Coolangatta Airport, Melbourne Airport and/or Perth Airport for each day of the entire roster period or periods, covering the months of March and April 2017.

While this class has apparent relevance to the matters to be determined by the Commission, and I accept Aerocare's arguments in respect of the potential volume of material to be produced and its confidentiality, I consider the class goes beyond the matters that the Commission requires in order to determine the application. I consider the Commission's need in this regard can be satisfied with an order in the more limited terms proposed by Aerocare in respect of the information Mr Shelley had available to him when he formed the view the Agreement met the better off overall test.
[27] As recorded above, Aerocare argue strongly that much of the material that is sought to be produced by the unions is or should be confidential and that to some extent the material represents its intellectual property as well as its commercial advantage. It also argues that the unions cannot be respected as a neutral party in respect of its commercial situation and that instead each must be regarded as a competing entity. Mr Shelley’s affidavit puts forward that “[b]ecause of its intrinsic intellectual property, I cannot hand over copies of the Shelley BOOT Analysis to the Unions as possession of a copy would enable an IT expert to extract the Aerocare rosters which are very commercially valuable.”

[28] While I do not accept the sweeping breadth of these contentions at face value, noting that in order for them to be accepted by me I would require detailed evidence on the subject, I accept that nonetheless there is at least some commercial advantage to be had by Aerocare in not disclosing to full public gaze its innermost commercial workings. Accepting for a moment that there is in fact some deep intellectual property in the company’s rosters, which provides a commercial edge for Aerocare beyond that which could be generated by any competent management, it would be inappropriate for the Commission to proceed in a manner which forced a diminution of its competitive edge. Having formed that view, I accept that the Commission should tread carefully in respect of anything which may potentially diminish Aerocare’s commercial standing. Plainly the decisions required to be made by the Commission in respect of the approval of the application do not require more than the Commission to be satisfied of the tests in the Act and particularly within Part 2 – 4.

[29] In all the circumstances, I consider it appropriate to seek undertakings from both the TWU and the ASU that, should they obtain access to the documents required to be produced, they will treat the information as confidential and ensure that it is not distributed beyond those people directly involved in the Commission’s proceedings.

[30] Having considered these matters, the Commission proposes to make orders in these terms:

1. Aerocare Flight Support Pty Ltd and Aero-Care Flight Support Unit Trust, the Applicants in this matter, are ORDERED to provide to the Fair Work Commission the documents, records and other information specified in the Schedule to this order before the Fair Work Commission at its Brisbane Registry by 5 PM on Tuesday, 27 June 2017 (the Produced Documents) and to use their best endeavours to ensure that a further two copies of the Produced Documents are received in the Commission’s Melbourne Registry by 9 AM on Wednesday, 28 June 2017 and a further one copy is received in the Sydney Registry by the same time. In each case, the Produced Documents are to be bound in indexed ring folder(s) and are to be page-numbered.

2. For the purposes of the Commission only, in addition to providing the Produced Documents as a hard-copy, they are also to be filed electronically as a PDF document, with the requirement that the PDF document properties/security must allow for printing, document assembly, content copying, page extraction and Optical Character Recognition.

3. Should the TWU or ASU wish to have access to any or all of the Produced Documents, they are to provide to the Commission by no later than 5 PM on Tuesday, 27 June 2017 an undertaking signed by the Secretary of the respective union that it agrees that all Produced Documents to which it has access are and will remain confidential and that no officer, employee, agent, contractor or legal representative of the union will publish or disclose any part of the Produced Documents except where it is done for the purposes of these proceedings. At the same time as the union provides its undertaking it will nominate by name and position its counsel, solicitors and instructing representatives who it seeks have access to the Produced Documents. Upon receipt of an undertaking in these terms the Commission will issue a further Order granting access to the union or unions to the Produced Documents, provided that such access will be limited to inspection of the material at the Commission’s Brisbane, Melbourne or Sydney Registries by the union or union’s nominated counsel, solicitors and instructing representatives.

Dear $47F(1)

MINISTERIAL UPDATE NUMBER 5

Please find below our further updated briefing to your Minister.

BOOT Hearing

1. On 13 and 14 July 2017 the application for the approval of the Aerocare Collective Agreement 2017 (CA17) was heard before Commissioner Wilson in Brisbane.

2. The Australian Municipal, Administrative, Clerical and Services Union (ASU) and the Transport Workers Union (TWU) were in attendance to oppose the application. The ASU were self represented by $47F(1), with $47F(1) from the ASU instructing; and the TWU were represented by $47F(1) of Counsel with$47F(1) from the TWU instructing.

3. Aerocare called evidence from its National General Manager for Industrial Relations, $47F(1) from its IT Team leader (in relation to the integrity of Aerocare's internally applied balloting system) and from an employee covered by CA17.

4. Both unions argued, despite not lodging any "scope" application during the bargaining period, that the exclusion of casuals from CA17 resulted in CA17 not being "fairly chosen" or "genuinely agreed".

The unions were silent on the fact (as detailed in evidence) that Aerocare had deliberately not included casuals due to the rapid reduction in casual employee numbers due to the ordinary turnover of labour and initiatives of Aerocare to not further recruit casual (recruiting permanent part time or full time only) and to actively encourage/offer casuals to transition to permanent roles in conjunction with CA17.

The unions were also silent on the recent Australian Council of Trade Unions (ACTU) "success" before the Fair Work Commission (FWC) for the addition into all modern awards of a clause allowing casuals to convert to permanent positions subject to specific rules and restrictions and that CA17 already facilitated this.

5. The other areas of dispute were:

5.1 The proper interpretation of the Modern Award in relation to split shifts and the consequences of the proper interpretation for CA17 – The TWU (supported by the ASU) submitted that a second tranche of hours in the same day should be paid penalty or overtime rates on the basis of a break in continuous hours; or alternatively that the second tranche attracted penalty or overtime rates as "callback" hours.

Aerocare led evidence that this position was inconsistent with the unions' position across the aviation industry. In particular it was noted that the TWU had agreed to be covered by a number of post 2012 EBAs involving subsidiary companies on multi-national competitors (namely Skyistar; a subsidiary of Menzies PLC) which specifically referred to and authorised "split shifts" without similar provision/arrangement for any second tranche of hours to be at penalty or overtime rates.

It was also observed that the unions led no evidence of any application being brought before the FWC or against any employer disputing the interpretation of the applicable Modern Award or a current certified agreement and seeking a ruling that second tranches were to be paid at penalty or overtime rates.

It was also submitted on behalf of Aerocare that if the FWC ruled unfavourably on this point and that penalty or overtime rates were to apply to all second tranche hours; the 622 page BOOT analysis would be discarded; as Aerocare would simply not roster any covered worker for a second tranche of hours in the same day and would recruit additional workers to work those hours at ordinary time rates.

It was further submitted that if Aerocare rostered as it commercially and responsibly would in light of such a ruling, current workers working split shifts would be disadvantaged as their hours would be significantly reduced (no split shifts); and if they needed to seek a second job they would likely be working such additional hours elsewhere at ordinary time rates (making it no different from working a second tranche at Aerocare at ordinary hour rates) and be paying higher taxation on their second job earnings.

5.2 Whether CA17 passed BOOT – The union arguments centred on their analysis of a 622 page printout Aerocare submitted that evidenced its BOOT calculations based on a theoretical roster drawn from hours worked by all covered employees earlier this year.

The unions regarded the tendered calculations to be incorrect because (as noted above) Aerocare did not calculate pays on the basis that any second tranche of hours in a day were to be paid at penalty rates; and because the unions did not believe Aerocare could include any set off/ calculation of commercial car parking costs that it absorbed on behalf of any employees who parked at an airport where no free carparking was available (the overwhelming majority of workplaces covered by CA17).

We believe that the union response and their own calculations (which failed to include any carparking cost adjustment and was inconsistent in its application of penalty or overtime rates) was discredited under cross-examination.

6. At the finalisation of the hearing, Commissioner Wilson reserved his decision.

7. Additional submissions were required regarding the removal of a now redundant entity named in CA17.

8. We expect the timeline for Commissioner Wilson to provide his decision and reasons for the decision to be approximately 4-6 weeks.

9. We are presently awaiting a copy of the FWC transcript. A copy of relevant portions of transcript will be made available to you in due course once received. If you would prefer a complete copy, please let us know.

Right of Entry Dispute

10. On 7 July 2017, §47F(1) National Secretary for the TWU, entered a restricted security area at Sydney Airport for the purpose of holding discussions with Aerocare employees regardless of whether they were on any break or not.

11. Neither the TWU nor §47F(1) took any steps to notify Aerocare of §47F(1) entry onto Aerocare premises and did he not provide any notice of right of entry (NROE) as required under the Fair Work Act 2009 (Cth) (FWA); or any NROE with the minimum applicable notice.

12. On behalf of Aerocare we wrote to §47F(1) to request undertakings in respect of his future conduct along the lines of undertakings we obtained from the TWU's Queensland aviation organiser, §47F(1) in 2013 regarding an invalid right of entry at Brisbane Airport.

13. In the absence of any acknowledgement or response to our correspondence, on the instructions of Aerocare we filed an application for the FWC to deal with a right of entry dispute.

14. The right of entry dispute has now been listed for hearing over 2 days in early October 2017, with a prior without prejudice conference to occur at a mutually convenient (but yet to be agreed) time.
A copy of the Right of Entry application filed with the FWC is attached.

s.47F(1) has engaged lawyers and counsel, but has not filed any material in response to the Application to date.

We will provide a further update in relation to both the outcome of the BOOT hearing and the right of entry dispute as they become available.

15. We otherwise note that Mr Sheldon’s existing Entry Permit expires in October 2017.

We will otherwise keep you informed of further developments.

Yours faithfully

Macpherson Kelley

About right of entry
Section 505(3) of the Fair Work Act 2009 allows the Commission to deal with a dispute regarding right of entry on its own initiative, or upon application.
The Commission may deal with a range of disputes regarding right of entry, including:
- whether a request for a permit holder to comply with occupational health and safety requirements is reasonable (s.491 and s.499)
- whether a request for a permit holder to take a particular route to a room or area in which an interview is to be conducted or discussions held is reasonable (s.492A)
- in remote areas:
  - whether accommodation is reasonably available or premises reasonably accessible to permit holders;
  - whether providing accommodation or transport, or causing accommodation or transport to be provided would cause undue inconvenience to the occupier of premises;
  - whether a request to provide accommodation or transport is made within a reasonable period;
  - when a right of entry to investigate a suspected contravention or to hold discussions may be exercised by a permit holder (s.521C and s.521D); and
- the frequency with which a permit holder or permit holders of an organisation enter premises (s.505A).
The Commission can make orders imposing conditions, suspending or revoking a permit (s.505(2) and s.505A(3)).

Annexure B
(3.2 Please outline the grounds, including particulars, upon which the applicant relies in seeking the orders set out in question 3.1.)

1. At all material times on 7 July 2017 Mr Glenn Rooney was Manager, Airport Services – Sydney and was an authorised representative of the Applicant.

2. The First Respondent’s conduct referred to in paragraph 2 of Annexure A was in breach of:

   2.1 Section 487(1) (b) FWA by failing, or otherwise refusing to, before entering the Premises, give the Applicant a Right of Entry notice for the entry;

   2.2 Section 481(2) FWA by failing, or otherwise refusing to, provide a Right of Entry Notice that complied with section 518 FWA;

   2.3 Section 487(3) FWA by failing, or otherwise, refusing to provide a Right of Entry Notice during working hours and at least 24 hours, but not more than 14 days, before the entry; and in circumstances where, to the Applicant’s knowledge, the Fair Work Commission had not issued any exemption certificate for the entry to the First or Second Respondent.

Particulars

(a) On 7 July 2017 at approximately 9.20am the First Respondent and Mr Glenn Rooney (Rooney) of the Applicant had a discussion in a restricted security area of the Premises occupied by the Applicant (Discussion).

(b) During the Discussion, words to the following effect were said:

   (i) Rooney: "What are you doing in Aerocare's premises?"

   (ii) First Respondent: "I want to talk to the staff and show them how their wages are in comparison to the award."

   (iii) Rooney: "Have you applied for or been granted a right of entry for our premises?"

   (iv) First Respondent: "I am the secretary of the TWU and don't need one. I am talking to workers while they are on a break."

   (v) Rooney: "How do you know they are on a break and if they are available?"

   (vi) First Respondent: "All staff are in the break room and not doing anything so they must be on a break."

   (vii) Rooney: "Just because they are in the break room does not mean they are on a break. They could be between flights coordinating their next arrival or departure.

   (viii) Rooney: "Please leave as you do not have a right of entry, nor do you have a right to be on the premises."
(ix) First Respondent: "Are you representing Aerocare and Archer Capital by telling the National Secretary of the TWU that I can't be in your office?"

(x) Rooney: "Yes, as you do not have a right to entry. Our ramp office is private property and you have no right to be here."

(xi) Rooney: "Please leave."

(xii) First Respondent: "Why won't you allow us to tell your workers that they aren't being paid the Award and that Aerocare has the worst safety record in the country and the highest injuries rate, especially at Sydney International. Aerocare management continually make it difficult for the TWU to speak to their workers."

(xiii) First Respondent: "What is your name, title and contact number?"

(xiv) Rooney: "My name is Glenn Rooney and I am the Manager, for Airport Services at Sydney…. If you need anything contact me"

(xv) Rooney: "Please leave the premises."

(xvi) First Respondent: "Are you going to kick me out?"

(xvii) Rooney: "If you keep refusing to leave I will need to contact security as you have no work purpose for being in our office as you do not hold a right of entry permit."

2.4 Section 490(2) FWA on grounds that whilst purporting to exercise a right of entry, the First Respondent failed to hold discussions with the Applicant's employees only during mealtimes or other scheduled breaks.

Particulars

(a) Particulars as per paragraph 2.3(b)(iv) - (vii) above.

2.5 Section 490(3) FWA on grounds that whilst purporting to exercise a right of entry, the First Respondent did not enter premises on a day specified in any entry notice or exemption certificate for the entry.

Particulars

(a) Particulars as per paragraph 2.3(b)(iii) – (iv) above.

2.6 Section 492(1) FWA on grounds that whilst purporting to exercise a right of entry, the First Respondent did not hold discussions in the room or area of the Premises agreed with the Applicant.

Particulars

(a) Particulars as per paragraph 2 above.

2.7 Section 500 FWA on grounds that whilst purporting to exercise a right of entry, the First Respondent hindered or obstructed the Applicant's employees in the performance of their work and otherwise acted in an inappropriate manner by handing out flyers and business cards to the Applicant's employees whilst they were working and not on a scheduled break.

Particulars

(a) Mr Glenn Rooney, Manager Airport Services-Sydney of the Applicant, witnessed the First Respondent talking to approximately 7 staff members of the Applicant and handing out flyers to them at the Premises;

2.8 Section 503 FWA, on the grounds that the First Respondent took action with the intention of giving the impression, or alternatively was reckless as to whether the impression was given, that he had authority to enter the Premises without having to comply with the Applicant's reasonable request to provide an entry notice as required by the FWA.

Particulars

(a) Particulars as per paragraph 2.3 above.

3. By reason of the First Respondent's conduct referred to and particularised in paragraph 2 to 2.8 above, for which it is vicariously liable, the Second Respondent is also in breach of the provisions of the FWA referred to in paragraph 2 to 2.8 above.
