Hi s22(1)(

Thanks for the update on the Shepparton Bypass business case. Larger files can be transferred onto the Department of Infrastructure, Transport, Cities and Regional Development Secure File Transfer site.

I have asked our IT to give you access (I'm hoping you received an email this morning). I understand that s22(1)(a)(i) and s22(1)(a)(ii) also have access and have previously used this system to upload PPRs.

If you have any issues, please just let us know and we can discuss with our IT services. Likewise, if you would like us to provide access to more people in your team, just let me know.

Many thanks and looking forward to receiving the business case.

Hi s22(1)(

We're putting the finishing touches on the business case for the Shepparton Bypass and will be ready to submit it to you very soon.

Just wondering what method you prefer for it's lodgement? The file size is about 17MB, so I don't think it will get through your servers.

Is there a secure file transfer portal you can send for us to load it up?

Let me know and we'll get it ready on our end.

Hi everyone,

Ahead of the next monthly roads meeting next Monday 24th of May at 2:00-3:00 could you send me any agenda items you would like added by COB Wednesday. I will compile and send out an Agenda on Thursday.

Attached are the minutes from our last meeting.

Note I recall you mentioned that you may want to move it as it might conflict with other commitments on your end so please just let me know when would be a good time and I can confirm on our end the availability. Also there is a conflict with the RPM demonstration from the Commonwealth on the 24th between 2:00 and 2:30 so moving this meeting would allow us to attend that as well.

Bypass promise left hanging as Coalition pledges to release business case

By Max Stainkaph

Oct 12, 2022

Common cause: Member for Northern Victoria Wendy Lovell, Liberal candidate for Shepparton Cheryl Hammer, Shadow Treasurer David Davis, City of Greater Shepparton Mayor Shane Sali, Nationals candidate for Shepparton Kim O'Keeffe and Shepparton Bypass Action Group chair Peter Johnson. Victorian Shadow Treasurer David Davis visited Shepparton on Wednesday to talk to Shepparton Bypass Action Group members about the languishing ring road project, but he didn't have as much to say as they would have liked.

While he said he would release the business case to the public should the Coalition get elected, Mr Davis refused to commit to funding the bypass.

When asked if he would commit to funding the project, Mr Davis said "we certainly think that the bypass is a very important piece of infrastructure".

"We're meeting today with people who have knowledge of it, and are advocating for it, and it's clearly been an important piece of infrastructure," he said.

Mr Davis spoke to representatives from Greater Shepparton City Council and the action group chair Peter Johnson, along with Shepparton candidates Cheryl Hammer and Kim O'Keeffe, as well as state Member for Northern Victoria Wendy Lovell.

With the business case still under wraps, there isn't a public dollar figure on the road for which the Opposition could budget, but Mr Davis refused to back the bypass even if the business case was positive.

Mr Johnson said the indication he had been given from the Federal Government was that the ball was in the Victorian Government's court for progress on the project.

He said it made sense the Opposition wouldn't commit to funding it "no matter what", but said it would have been nice to receive in-principle backing for the project.

"Wendy Lovell has been very supportive and has given the government more grief than anyone else, and Suzanna Sheed has also backed it in," Mr Johnson said.

Speaking at Monash Park as trucks rolled past, Mr Johnson said the bypass was desperately needed to get heavy vehicles out of the Shepparton and Mooroopna CBDs and to provide an alternate river crossing.

He said publication of the business case would help the project get off the ground and it needed to be released.

"The understanding is the business case does endorse stage one of the project, but we don't know how much has been costed," Mr Johnson said.

He welcomed Mr Davis's promise to unseal the document should the Coalition get into power.
