Hi all,

Please see link to the media release:

<https://www.bioenergyaustralia.org.au/news/queensland-biofuel-refinery-to-turn-agricultural-by-products-saf/>

Key Points:

- Qantas and Airbus will jointly invest $2 million of an initial $6 million, QLD Government will contribute $760,000, other Australian and international institutional funds provide additional funding
- Funding will be used to conduct detailed feasibility study and early-stage project development (most likely pilot plant).
- Project will utilise Lanzajet Alcohol-to-Jet processing (Utilising abundant sources of ethanol in QLD).

More to come.

Thanks,

s22(1)

Dear s22(1)(a)(ii),

I trust you are well and thank you for inviting us to the recent Jet Zero Council virtual round table event recently.

As I mentioned briefly in the roundtable, we have a major project announcement being made Thursday, 30th March together with our project partners, including LanzaJet CEO, Jimmy Samartzis, who is out from the USA.

US-based LanzaJet is our technology partner for our domestic SAF Production Project and are the leading global SAF technology provider.

Jet Zero Australia is hosting an Industry Briefing at 10.30am on 30th March in Sydney CBD (details below) prior to the formal announcement is made later that day at Mascot, which I would like to formally invite you and the Departmental SAF / JZC policy team to participate in, and of course anyone from Minister King's advisory staff who might appreciate hearing firsthand what the Project has managed to achieve moving towards full commercialisation, together with our Project Partners.

If there is any staff who you think would like to attend this informative event, can you please let me know by Tuesday next week. Also please don't hesitate to call if you have any further questions about our Project, our Announcement or Industry Briefing.

Hi s22(1)(a)(ii) & s22(1)(a)(ii)

It was great to have the opportunity to brief you both before Christmas on our Jet Zero Australia project, Australia's most commercially advanced SAF Project.

s47(1)(b)

Given the significant progress being made with the project, we were wondering whom you would recommend that we provide a project briefing to within the Department who is taking the lead on SAF.

Please don't hesitate to call me anytime if your office has any further questions. Jet Zero appreciates the concerted support the Government is continuing to show to the nascent Australian SAF industry.

Hi Jim

We are pleased to provide you with a major update with regards to our Jet Zero Australia project – and happy for you to pass onto your colleague Ben Vincent (who we haven't heard from yet, but hopefully he'll contact me soon).

s47(1)(b)

You may have seen some of the widespread coverage of the media event, but here is a summary of just some of the media Jet Zero Australia received in case you missed it:

- Queensland Government announcement
- AFR "Qantas, Airbus back local \$400m sustainable aviation fuel factory"
- The Australian "Qantas off the starting block in race to go green with Australia's first SAF refinery"
- SMH "Plans are taking off for Australia's first sustainable jet fuel refinery"
- TV interview with Jet Zero Australia's CEO, Mr Ed Mason

We appreciate your continued interest in the Project, as we move through our Preliminary Feasibility Study work. We look forward to working with the Commonwealth on rapidly developing a domestic Sustainable Aviation Fuel industry that can sustain thousands of new jobs plus deliver significant benefits for the agricultural sector.

Let me know if you have any questions about Project or would appreciate an update with myself and s47F
