

Submission: 128

Ken McGregor

I am a member of AAAA.

I have already purchased a Sky echo and don't want to pay $10,000 for a hard wired system as it will be a big % of the plane's overall value.

Many antique aircraft electrical systems will not support the upgrade.

Seems most collisions happen in the circuit where pilots will be using visual look out to avoid a collision, not head in the cockpit looking at instruments.

I fly day VFR and the sky echo and Oz Runways systems are more than enough over a proper lookout.