Short comment

Q1/Q3: I strongly object to the provided revenue requirement for corporations. Australian media is already dominated by large organisations. A lower revenue threshold should apply in general. Further, a nil revenue threshold should apply for organisations that are ACNC registered charities. This would provide funding to news organisations that operate for a social purpose, particularly those that serve a particular community. Finally, a portion of this money should go towards funding new media organisation or other projects that support people entering journalism.
