I have been complaining about this issue for years. There is ZERO phone reception for vast distances between rural towns in the Central highlands and Capricorn Coast. In many cases there is no mobile service available for hours. The amount of people driving alone, both day and night is very alarming as, in the unlikely event of an accident, and the vehicle is thrown from the road..... those people are likely to succumb from their injuries before any medical services could be contacted. The further one travels away from the city, the less the less phone Service is available. This is not only an inconvenience, but is literally a matter of LIFE and DEATH. Most workers travel these roads day after day, for years. Something needs to be done as soon as possible before more people die on our roads.
