Sponsored by the Department of Infrastructure, Regional Development and Cities

About the sponsor

The Australian Government, through the Department of Infrastructure, Regional Development and Cities contributes to the prosperity of the economy and the wellbeing of all Australians by assisting regions to realise their potential and manage their own futures. To do this, the department works in partnership with regional, rural, remote and Indigenous communities.

Australia's regions are integral to our values and sense of identity, which come from our unique and diverse culture, landscape, history and people.

The Australian Government's approach to regional development is to work in partnership with communities, government and the private sector to foster the development of self-reliant communities and regions, creating the right climate and environment to encourage the establishment of viable enterprises. Councils, shires and other recognised local government organisations along with local business and not-for-profit organisations play a key role in building regional capacity.
